Pre-Rationing 'Run' Perils Meat Stocks

DEALERS LOOK FOR TWO-DAY BUYING SPREE

Hope Wholesalers Will Give Supplies Sufficient To Last Through Monday.

RUSH FOR SMOKED MEATS

Packers Warn Supplies Won't Be Great Even After Point System Starts.

Mansfield meat dealers today were piling hope against hope that by Monday, beginning of point rationing, they will have something on hand to ration.

They were hoping that an anticipated buying rush in the next two days won't leave their meat storages bare at closing Saturday night.

And they were hoping that supplies expected from wholesalers today will be enough to carry them through the expected two-day buying spree and leave them enough on hand to keep their business running Monday.

As one meat dealer put it, "we won't be able to ration if there is nothing to ration," and this would be true if the buying rush in the next two days wipes out the stocks. There is a chance, he said, that wholesalers will supply enough to carry markets through the rush and still leave a stock on hand for Monday.

A survey of dealers showed today that the public is clamoring for smoked meats, particularly ham and bacon. These can be kept much longer than fresh cuts, but buyers are finding that these meats are the ones which are scarcest at local markets.

In fresh cuts, dealers say, shoppers are buying whatever they can find—and have been all week. "It's like gas rationing," one meat dealer notes, "everyone is trying to get a full refrigerator before the rationing begins."

"Many Mansfield shoppers have been buying $8 to $10 worth of meat at one time, which is about

$53,500 Reported, Red Cross Needs $5,500 to Hit Goal

Richland county Red Cross War Fund officials reported $53,500 today as the total collections in the drive to date, leaving $5,500 yet to be raised before the $59,000 goal is reached.

Solicitors today reported that all divisions except the large Mansfield industries are over their quotas. Industrial reports have been held up, it was stated, until paydays, arrive.

Small towns and rural communities, making up the county report, have more than doubled their quotas for this year. Drive leaders have commended workers in these communities for the outstanding work done there.

The house-to-house canvass and collections from retail merchants just completed have also gone "over the top."

FIND FIRE ON SPEEDING TRAIN

Officials Mystified by $60,000 Fire That Destroys Pullman.

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— Santa Fe railway officials today were unable to explain a fire which destroyed a Pullman car of the line's fast "Chief" near Yucca, Ariz., Tuesday night.

Flames burst from a linen closet as the train sped east from Needles. Passengers were transferred to other cars and the burning Pullman unhooked.

It was burned out, at a cost of $60,000, officials said.

STILL BANNED

Cuffs Won't Come Back For Duration, OPA Declares.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Cuffless trousers are here for the duration or at least as long as wool conservation is necessary, war production board officials said today.

They intimated the original order banning cuffs and making other changes in men's and boy's clothing will stand virtually unchanged.

Give Hints On How To Use Points

Experts Tell Family of Four How to Plan Meat Purchases.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — If you're looking for expert advice on the way to get the most for your points under the government's meat and fats rationing program starting Monday, the nutritionists in the home economics bureau of the department of agriculture have some ideas.

Each person is allowed 16 points each week for meat, cheese, fats and oils. The shopping list suggested by the nutritionists supplements three items with such unrationed protein foods as eggs, fish and cottage cheese.

They did not go into the matter of which fresh or canned vegetables and fruits to buy because of great variations in the supplies of fresh vegetables from city to city.

But they did offer suggestions for meat and fats purchases. They prepared a list of those items which might be purchased over a four-week period by a family of four with an annual income of $1,200 to $2,000. A family with a larger income, of course, could purchase a larger proportion of the more expensive cuts of meat, but point values generally are higher for those cuts.

The experts explained that they worked out their suggestions on a four week basis because it would not be necessary for a family to buy some items, such as shortening, each week. That would permit the purchase of more meat some weeks than others. The family of four has 64 points for meat and fat each week.

Here's the way the experts outlined it, counting eggs at one and one-half pounds per dozen:

First Week.

1½ lbs. round steak ....12 points
1 lb. dried beef .....12 points
1½ lbs. pork liver ..... 8 points
1½ lbs. fresh fish .....no points
1 dozen eggs .....no points
½ . cheese ..... 8 points
1 lb. margarine ..... 5 points
1 lb. salt pork ..... 4 points
3 lbs. lard .....15 points
Total 13 lbs.—64 points.

QUISLINGS LOSE

Nazis Ousted From Two Seats In Danish Parliament.

STOCKHOLM — (U.P.) — Danish Nazis lost two seats in the national parliament in Tuesday's election despite German occupation, returns indicated today.

The two major Nazi groups, the peasant Nazis and Fritz Clausen's Nationalist Socialists, got a total of only 67,968 votes, according to unofficial returns, while the nation cast more than 2,000,000 votes in response to appeals for a heavy turnout voiced by its leaders.

The two Nazi groups had 81,886 votes in 1939, the last election before the country was seized by Germany.

The total vote cast was approximately 300,000 above 1939.

Their Submarine Bagged 10 Jap Ships

In a year of prowling in enemy waters, an American submarine commanded by Lieut. Comdr. William E. Ferrall, right, and other officers pictured, sunk an enemy submarine and nine other ships totaling more than 50,000 tons. Ferrall, born at Colombia, O., and graduated from the U. S. Naval academy in 1927, also disclosed that a pharmacist's mate aboard the sub, Wheeler B. Lipes, successfully performed an appendectomy on a 19-year-old seaman while the sub was submerged. HOUSE DEBATES PAY-AS-YOU-GO

Representatives Expected To Write Own Bill, Forgiving Part of Year's Taxes.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—House debate on pay-as-you-go income tax plans began today amid predictions that the house will "write its own bill," rejecting the Ruml "skip-a-year" plan but forgiving part of one year's income taxes.

House Democratic Whip Robert L. Ramspeck, D., Ga., led those who believe that the house will find some middle ground between the Ruml proposal, which would forgive all of 1942's taxes to get on a current basis, and the Ways and Means committee's recommendation, which calls for non-forgiveness and a 20 per cent withholding tax on unpaid 1942 income taxes.

All of the major plans believed to have any chance at all include a 20 per cent withholding feature, making it the one virtual certainty as four days of general debate opened. It is expected to be late next week before a final vote is taken.

Between the Ruml and the administration's non-forgiveness plan is one proposed by Rep. A. Willis Robertson, D., Va., for cancelling the six per cent normal tax and

Auto Club to Be Open Until 8 P. M. For Sticker Sale

Richland County Auto club, agency for the sale of 1943 automobile license stickers, will remain open until 8 p. m. starting Friday and continuing throughout the remainder of the month.

The hours have been extended in order to allow defense plant workers to purchase their stickers.

Deputy Registrar Jack Berger announced this morning that this year's sales at the local office are far behind 1942 sales. During March of last year 10,888 tags were sold compared to a total of 5,809 so far this month.

Berger could not give an explanation for the sharp decrease but said that other agencies throughout the state were also running below 1942 sales.

Berger urged motorists to bring their bills of sale and 1942 registration certificates when applying for the stickers.

EXPECT RUSH

Tax Workers Warn Monday's Deadline on Returns.

With Monday the deadline for listing personal taxes, the county auditor's office and three booths in the courthouse corridor outside the auditor's door will be open all day Saturday to accommodate the expected rush.

Only approximately 2,800 of the 4,500 eligible to list have been in to date. Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said. Final date for payment of personal taxes is April 10.

Meanwhile, employes of the county treasurer's office had counted more than $720,618 in real estate payments which closed March 15, with more checks yet to be counted. The current tax charge was only $711,000. Many payments were made for the full year's tax charge.

ESCAPE PENALTY

Those Who Pay Income Tax at Once Have Chance, Says Gentsch.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Frank F. Gentsch, district internal revenue collector, said today that persons who have failed to pay at least the first quarter of their income taxes can do so immediately and avoid penalties or liens against their salaries.

He said he had received orders from Washington to begin proceedings against all delinquents, but because all of the income tax mail has not been opened, delinquent taxpayers may still pay without penalty.

WANTS NO PART OF GOV. BRICKER

William Allen White, Noted GOP Editor, Opposes Him as 'Honest Harding.'

(By United Press)

EMPORIA, Kans. — William Allen White, Emporia, Kan., Republican editor, wants no part of Gov John W. Bricker of Ohio as a possible GOP presidential standard-bearer next year.

In a biting editorial, White declared "the same forces in the Republican party that gathered about Taft in 1912 and nominated Harding in a smoke-filled room in 1920—namely the Republican National committee, a group of hard-boiled politicians—seems determined to force the nomination of Bricker.

"And who is Bricker? Alice Roosevelt is said to have defined him in five words: 'Bricker is an honest Harding.'"

White declared Bricker is trying to capitalize the tremendous discontent of the Republicans and Democrats who broke with the New Deal.

"He hopes to get by without saying anything," White continued, "without getting on either side. A man who can stand in American politics, aspiring for high office without even the intelligence, without the courage of sheer honesty to make some declaration upon the most important issue ever faced by this old earth, certainly is not the kind of a man for the Republicans to rally around.

"Surely the Republican party cannot be so craven as to conspire to sneak into victory with no issue but Bricker and a bellyache.

"Bricker is an honest Harding—thumbs down."

POISON GAS

Chinese Charge Japs Hurl It With Trench Mortars.

CHUNGKING—(U.P.)—A Chinese military spokesman charged today that the Japanese had hurled poison gas shells from trench mortars several times during fighting in the Mitoshih area along the Yangtze river front.

A Chinese communique on March 22 had accused the Japanese of using poison gas twice in defiance of President Roosevelt's warning last June that such warfare would bring "retaliation in kind."

DEBATE SET

Churchill Reveals Commons To Discuss India Question.

LONDON —(U.P.)— Prime Minister Winston Churchill announced in commons today that a general debate on the Indian situation will be held on the second sitting day after April 11.

The government yesterday issued a white paper reiterating its charge that Mohandas K. Gandhi and the all-India congress party were responsible for bloodshed and rioting in India last summer.

BROWN CALLS FOR DEFEAT OF 2 FARM BILLS

Says Bankhead, Pace Acts Would End Stabilization of Wages, Prices.

SEES FOOD COST RISE

OPA Chief Says Agricultural Income Four Times Better Than at Start of War.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown urged congress today to reject the strongly-backed Bankhead and Pace farm bills, saying they would add more than $3,750,000,000 to consumers' budgets and destroy the anti-inflation program.

Both bills have as their ultimate end the increase of farm income but, Brown wrote congressional leaders, they call for "so radical a change in the price of foods" as to mean "the end of stabilization of prices" and the end of "the stabilization of wages as well."

The price administrator's letter went to Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), president pro tempore of the senate who promised "the stiffest kind of a fight" if farm bloc leaders insist on calling for a senate vote today on the Pace bill to add farm labor costs to the crop parity formula.

Also receiving the letter were Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky, Speaker Rayburn of the house and House Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts.

The house has approved the Pace bill and both branches have approved the Bankhead bill, although in somewhat different versions, to stipulate that government benefit payments shall not be included in computing farm parity price ceilings.

Taken together, Brown said, they would raise the retail price of food between 17 and 18 per cent, increase the annual food budget of consumers by three and three quarters billion dollars and cost the government an additional one and one-quarter billion dollars a year.

"We must face the fact that radical change in the cost of food means radical change in the little

CLAIMS BODY

Father of Victim In Murder Arrives In Bucyrus.

BUCYRUS — While police throughout Ohio and neighboring states pushed their search today for a 42-year-old soldier stationed at Camp Millard, Bucyrus, in an attempt to solve the murder of Mrs. Wilma Reed, 29, Bucyrus waitress, Sunday night, the body of the victim was to be returned to Cuba, Ill., tonight for funeral services there Saturday.

Mrs. Reed's father, Dayton Hilton, and her brother, Harold Hilton, arrived in Bucyrus last night from Illinois to claim the body. They revealed that Mrs. Reed, mother of two small children, had been divorced four years ago from the children's father.

It was also learned that the army private whom officers are seeking has five children in Illinois.

The slain woman's battered body was found Monday in her apartment. Her soldier companion has been missing since Sunday night. They were not married, the father said.

Shell Airfield While British Defend Breach

8th Army Battles Rommel Fiercely In 'Devil's Cauldron' as Americans Gain In Maknassy Area; Soviets Gain In Triple Smolensk Drive.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson today expressed confidence in Allied victory in Tunisia, but warned that American forces there must expect heavy casualties.

(By Associated Press)

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army troops were reported warding off fierce Axis counterattacks in a "Devil's Cauldron" salient at the upper end of the Mareth line in southern Tunisia today, while farther up the front U. S. long range 155mm. guns shelled Mezzouna airfield, only 22 miles from the sea.

A bulletin from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said the battle for the Mareth line continued yesterday, marked by heavy artillery duelling.

To the north, the communique said, American patrols scored local gains in Maknassy area.

"In the Gafsa sector, American patrols carried out offensive operations with success," the communique declared, and Allied aerial squadrons, attacking by night and day, bombed and shot up Axis concentrations along a 20-mile stretch between Mareth and Gabes

Frontline dispatches said American troops yesterday won control of the last mountain ramparts overlooking the narrowing Axis corridor between Maknassy and the sea and pushed on toward Mezzouna under heavy Axis bombing attacks.

U. S. patrols clashed with Axis forces in an indecisive action at the town of Mehri Zebbeus, some 12 miles south of Maknassy.

Other American troops threw back Axis armored forces in the El Guetar oasis region, it was reported, when the Nazis made a futile attempt to seize the heights northwest of Djebel Berda.

The German high command gave this terse summary of the battle:

"Attacks launched by superior enemy forces at various sectors of the Tunisian front were repulsed in violent fighting."

Despite Montgomery's initial setback, London military quarters said there was "no reason for gloom," and added:

"We must remember that the enemy has been working for months to strengthen the Mareth line. It took us nine days to get through at El Alamein and I don't think we need to weep over this retreat."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — General MacArthur's "flying artillery" made 44 bombing and strafing runs over Japanese lines at Mubo yesterday, firing 30,000 rounds from cannons and machine-guns into enemy positions guarding the approaches to the Japanese New Guinea base at Salamaua, Allied headquarters announced today.

Other Allied planes carried out day and night attacks on far-flung enemy bases in the islands above Australia, scoring hits on shipping and airdrome areas, and one bomber on a Gorilla's Keeper Sends Out Appeal For Rationed Ration.

CINCINNATI —(INS)— If you have any home canned peaches to spare, please send them on to "Susie," the famous gorilla in the Cincinnati zoo.

That appeal went out to Cincinnatians today from J. F. Hausser, zoo executive director, who feared that Susie, denied her 20 point rationing delicacy of peaches every morning by the Office of Price Administration, would lose her appetite and possibly die.

Director Hausser's appeal followed an unfavorable ruling on Susie's breakfast of peaches from the OPA regional office in Cleveland.

U. S. SHIP TORPEDOED

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A medium sized U. S. Merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine in the Atlantic late in February. Survivors have been landed at Boston.

EXPECT UTMOST

Reds Want U. S., Britain To Act In 'Nearest Future.'

LONDON —(U.P.)— Ivan Maisky, Soviet ambassador to London, said today that Russia expects the United States and Great Britain to exert their maximum effort "in the nearest future" in the war against the common enemy.

Declaring that Russia is doing her utmost to bring about the defeat of the common enemy, Maisky added:

"My country and my people are expecting that all our allies, and most particularly Great Britain and the United States, will also do their maximum in the nearest future in order to bring this terrible war to an end at the earliest possible opportunity."

Maisky emphasized that while the Nazis recently had taken "a number of nasty knocks," they are by no means beaten.

Churchill Says Allies Have More Ships Than Ever, Now.

LONDON —(INS)— The United Nations today have substantially larger fleets than at the worst period of the Axis submarine campaign, Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared in the house of commons today in answering a question as to Allied shipping losses.

The United Nations shipping situation is constantly improving, Mr. Churchill added.

County's Subdivisions Pare Debts $227,285 During Year

Indebtedness of Mansfield, Shelby and other Richland county subdivisions was reduced nearly a quarter of a million dollars in 1942 and outstanding obligations Jan. 1, 1943, totaled $2,215,712, figures compiled by County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe showed today. The county government has been free from debt for more than two years.

Reductions in public debts in the county last year amounted to $227,285. Mansfield paid $59,000 on its indebtedness in 1942 and Shelby reduced its obligations by $28,185.

Mansfield's share of the total debt was $353,300 while Shelby topped that figure with obligations amounting to $421,815. The Mansfield indebtedness included $116,000 in sewage disposal bonds, $102,000 on special assessments, and smaller amounts for street improvements, buildings, fire department and signal systems.

Largest items in the Shelby debt were $215,000 owed in waterworks bonds, $76,000 on the city-owned power plant, and $52,500 on the sewage system.

Indebtedness of the county's seven corporated villages, Bellville, Butler, Lexington, Lucas, Plymouth, Shiloh, and South Boulevards totalled $121,088, mostly for waterworks and sewer obligations. The 11 consolidated schools of the county owed $363,966.

Mansfield's school debt stood at $797,000 while that of Shelby was $126,102. School debts, in all cases, are for buildings, repairs and equipment.

The combined debt of the county's 18 townships was $17,340, due in most cases, for road improvements. In Jefferson township, the obligation was for fire equipment, while Butler township owes for its township house.

War Job or Military Service, Choice for 'Non-Deferrables'

Richland county selective service boards will start April 1 to re-classify registrants in jobs termed "non-deferrable" under national draft regulations, giving literally hundreds of men their choice of taking essential war jobs or going into military service.

Draft board clerks pointed out that registrants in any one of a long list of "non-deferrable" occupations will be re-classified as 1-A, regardless of dependents, unless they can satisfy their local boards that such employment is due to illness, physical disability, or other circumstances which make it impossible for them to change to essential employment without undue hardship.

Other able-bodied men with families will have a 30-day period in which to get into war industries. They will be urged to register with the U. S. Employment service unless they can find essential work without help.

The re-classification will largely concern men in the 3-A group who have been deferred because of family obligations. Registrants who are already in essential jobs have been placed in the 3-B class-

NILES BRANDED 4TH TERM AGENT

Congressman Says Hopkins' Relative Operates Behind Scenes.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— David K. Niles of Boston was described in the house today by Rep. Bradley (R-Mich.) as "a clever behind-the-scenes operator" who has been placed in charge of a fourth term campaign for President Roosevelt.

Bradley said Niles, whom he described also as a brother-in-law of Harry L. Hopkins, was "the outstanding exponent of the passion for anonymity so frequently displayed by many behind-the-scenes policy makers of the New Deal." (Niles is an administrative assistant to President Roosevelt.)

"I intend to delve into some of his activities to date in setting up the greatest political machine in all time in any nation," Bradley said. "Next week, I shall take the floor and expose some of his present plans which even a dumb congressman cannot help but see through.

"Niles is a practical politician. He will stop at nothing, including preying on the patriotism of the fathers and mothers of this country whose sons and daughters are now in the services.

"I intend to show that he is building a stupendous political organization cleverly and serenely screened within the Office of Civilian Defense, the Office of War Information and others."

GOES 270 MILES TO TRAVEL 12

TAHOE CITY, Lake Tahoe, Cal.—(U.P.)—Postman D. M. Brodehl has found that the shortest distance between two points only 12 miles apart is a round trip of 270 miles.

Faced with the problem of fulfilling his contract to deliver mail to lake post offices north and south of Tahoe City after recent heavy snowstorms, Brodehl got the mail through by going around.

To reach the Crystal Bay post office, 12 miles north of here, he went by way of Reno and Carson City, Nev., a 270-mile round trip.

He is thinking of using a rowboat equipped with outboard motor to make his tri-weekly trip to Meeks Bay, 12 miles south.

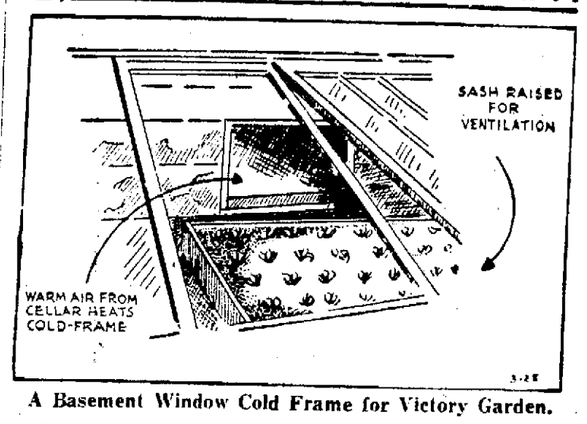
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



A Basement Window Cold Frame for Victory Garden.

By DEAN HOLLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Assn.)

A cold frame built around a basement window has a double source of heat, the sun's rays plus heated air from the interior of the basement. Such a cold frame is not expensive to make and is rather easy to operate. A basement window cold frame should not be built, however, unless the location receives full sun.

A cold frame is heated by the penetration of the sun's rays through the glass of the sash, but as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph a frame built around a basement window will also receive heat from the basement when the window is opened for that purpose.

Some gardeners run a steam pipe from the house and along the back edge of the frame virtually transforming it into a hotbed, but this is not entirely practical in these days of priorities.

One can grow plants directly in the soil in the cold frame but it will prove more convenient if they are grown in flats or individual pots. Pots, in this case, can be sunk up to their rims in peat, sand or gravel placed in the frame.

Aside from its use for growing early plants, the cold frame can also be used during the hot summer to grow lettuce with the use of a lath covering to give partial shade and protection from the hot sun. In the fall the cold frame can also be used for the storage of certain leafy vegetables, including broccoli and celery.

In days of old the citizens didn't need to be told that the arrival of a stranger with a disjointed pool cue encased in a neat little bag meant that there was a pool hustler in town.

The citizens had seen pool hustlers before, and had some idea of the score, but there were always a few reckless hot shots among the local stick wielding fraternity who couldn't resist the temptation of getting their fingers burned, so the hustler picked up a fair living for a week or so.

Quite often, by that time, another hustler would arrive, openly boasting of his prowess with the stick, beating one or two of the town's better pool sharks, and issuing challenges and defies to the first hustler on the spot.

Like the meow of Red Skelton's cat, the trick always worked. Even with all the haggling over rules, and spot, and referee and all, it was surprising how quickly the two hustlers got together in their big match, and how the local boys gathered round wagering on this shark or that, and the way the hustlers grabbed up any and all bets.

Sometimes the villain who first took the citizens' dough would win, and sometimes the hero who appeared to avenge them, but always it was the one who was able to arrange the largest wager.

Sometimes the citizens wondered at the coincidental departure of the two hustlers. Sometimes they didn't wonder. They chased the hustlers out, or carted them forth on a rail.

One way and another, characters who wandered over the countryside carrying pool sticks gained a very bad reputation.

That day is long gone. Pool hustlers haven't been able to make a fat living for years. They've practically been starved out of existence.

Willie Hoppe led the sport into respectability, took the traveling professionals of the exhibition and tournament circuit along with him into the plush strata.

Pocket billiards is now so respectable, a beautiful girl (her picture indicates that) will stroll into Andregg's on Third street tonight, unwrap her pool cue, and proceed to give the men a trimming. She specializes in beating men at billiards.

Marceline (Billie) Vaughan, 22 years old and cuter than somewhat, used to make the exhibition circuit with her father, Carl Vaughan, a former national champion in pocket billiards. They were at Andregg's a year and a half ago, and gave such a fine exhibition. Ralph Andregg reports the boys played nothing but straight pool for months thereafter. They forgot about the slop variety.

Carl is now working in a Toledo war plant and doesn't get around for exhibitions any more, but Billie has been touring the service camps and USO halls, giving exhibitions for soldiers, and finding no difficulty at all in getting competition for her cue.

In between service camp trips Billie has been taking flying lessons, and hopes some day to enlist in the WAAFS. The money she makes on civilian exhibitions pays for her flying lessons. Respectable sport? Well, I should say so. Tonight's exhibition at 8 o'clock is free to the public.

Pick Yorks As Tourney Long Shot

Score 409 Points In 7 Tournament Games.

By JACK SLOAN

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — For these followers of the Ohio Schoolboy Basketball tournament who like to pick longshots, Yorkville will be the Class B team to watch in Saturday's final meet at the Ohio State gymnasium.

The Yorks have the poorest record of the four Class B contenders—30 victories against 6 defeats—but here's a bit of information which offsets the season-record basis for selection.

Yorkville is paired with the top-ranking Middlepoint which has won 26 consecutive games. On the surface the Middlepoint quintet appears to be a heavy favorite, but a glance at the scoring power of both teams slashes the odds to a much smaller percentage.

In six tournamnt games Middlepoint has scored 268 points, an offensive average of 44.6, while Yorkville in seven tourney matches has amassed 409 points for a 58.4 average. Officially, then, Yorkville ranks 13.6 points above the undefeated Polar Bears.

The six middle point opponents have collected 177 points or an average of 29.5, while Yorkville has allowed its seven victims 250 points or 35.7 each. This gives Middlepoint a 6.2-point defensive advantage, but the Yorks have an over-all margin of 7.6 points.

Only one Class B team has been able to master the Yorkville quintet. Dillondale nosed out the Ductilites 34 to 30 in the finals of the Jefferson county tournament. Tiltonville, a Class A school, and the larger Wheeling, West Virginia team each defeated the Yorks twice.

Yorkville's other loss came on a split two-game series with Steubenville Central, also a Class A school.

Yorkville's 1942 state tournament bid was halted in the semi-finals by Bluffton, after Tipp City, another Class B repeater, had been ousted in the Opening round. Waynesburg, the third current contender, also was beaten in the semi-finals last year.

The 10-man Yorkville tournament squad includes eight seniors and a pair of sophomores. Coach Ted Sim's starting five are all veterans and make up a smooth-working, evenly-balanced team. The leading scorer during the regular season was Bob Jackson, a guard, who totaled 225 points, while the other starters averaged over 160 points each.

The Ductilite roster is composed of names which only Notre Dame's "Fighting Irish" can rival. The starting five includes Jackson and Magnone at guards, Franko at center, and Jokovich and Radakovich at forwards. On the reserve list are Kolikias, Fior, Dayoub, Gevas and J. Jackson.

The other Class B game Saturday afternoon matches Waynesburg, which has won 25 games in 27 attempts, and Tipp City, with 17 victories and three defeats. Waynesburg has an offensive average of 36 points and a defensive average of 32, while Tipp City has average 33.7 points on offensive and boasts a defensive average of 21.5 for six tournament games.

Brinkerhoff Gets In Finals

Two Semi-Final Tilts Scheduled Monday.

Upset victors over Prospect in the opening round of the grade school basketball tournament, Brinkerhoff moved into the tourney finals yesterday by barely edging Hedges 13-10.

The Brinks took a 5-3 lead in the first quarter and boosted it to 9-1 at the half, but were held scoreless in the third quarter as Hedges brought the score to 8-9. A 4-2 margin in the last period clinched it for Brinkerhoff.

Newman swamped Carpenter 29-3 to move into the semi-finals against West Fifth Monday at John Simpson gym at 4 p. m.

In the consolation tournament, Prospect reached the finals yesterday with a 20-10 victory over Woodland, while Bowman took Bashnell 7-3 to get in the semi-finals. Bowman meets Western Monday at 4:30 at Simpson.

New Phillie Owner Keeping Wires Busy on More Trades

By JUDSON BAILEY

HERSHEY, Pa. —(AP)— This is going to be another trade story from it Philadelphia Phillies. If you have been paying much attention to the club since young Bill Cox bought it, you undoubtedly have seen countless essays about how near the Phils are to completing all kinds of deals.

The steady stream of trade winds across the sports pages seemed like propaganda from a distance, but closer inspection at the camp of the Phillies reveals that it simply is an epidemic of enthusiasm emanating from Cox.

He and Manager Bucky Harris appear to be at the telephone morning, noon and night trying to make trades.

"I'll guarantee that we'll have at least three new faces on our squad before opening day," Cox told us. "Yes, I mean three in addition to what we have now.

"I think they will be good deals for us, too. They kidded us some about the Babe Dahlgren deal, didn't they, because we gave two players for one. But it's beginning to look like a pretty good trade from our angle, isn't it?"

This question called for instant agreement, since Dahlgren is in camp here, eager to have his best year, while the Brooklyn Dodgers have been unable to lure Lloyd Waner away from his Oklahoma home and Infielder Albie Glossc has developed arm trouble that makes his value doubtful.

Cox said he could report nothing concerning the status of his negotiations with the New York Yankees for reopening the Nick Etten deal made by Gerry Nugent, previous owner of the Phillies.

However, the gossip in camp is that Commissioner Landis has advised Edward G. Barrow, president of the Yankees, to provide adequate substitutes for the two New York chattels, Allen Gettel and Ed Levy, who failed to report to the Phils, and that this matter is being held up while waivers are asked in the American league.

The Phils obtained Pitcher Jack Kraus and cash from Brooklyn in exchange for Bobby Bragan, and purchased Pitcher Schoolboy Rowe from Montreal in their newest deal.

From the Minors

Eddie Turchin, infielder from Wilkes-Barre, may figure in the infield plans of the Cleveland Indians this year. Turchin, 24-year-old native New Yorker, only recently was added to the Indian roster. He fielded well but hit only .260 with the Wilkes-Barre team last year. He has been playing baseball for five years. He went to Brooklyn college for three years but had to quit to help support the family. Of Polish parentage, Turchin stands 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 163 pounds.

3 Gotham Teams Play Doubleheader

NEW YORK —(INS)— Plans for New York City's own "defense world's series," were set today following a confab between officials of the three New York clubs, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the CDVO and sundry city officials.

The double header in the triangular "series" between the Yanks, Giants and Dodgers is scheduled for April 14 at Yankee stadium and a net of $100,000 is anticipated. Proceeds will go to the fund used to carry on the work of the greater New York Civilian Defense Volunteer Office.

The opener will be between the Yanks and Dodgers, with the Giants playing the victor. If the games are rained out, they will be postponed to April 16.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Eddie Hickey, the Creighton basketball coach, thought it was the real thing when New York had its 5 a. m. air raid test the other morning. . . . Hoping to sleep late, Eddie had drawn his window shades against the early morning sun. . . . And just as the sirens sounded, the shade cast off its moorings and rolled to the top with the usual startling slap. . . . If you can believe what the boys say along West 49th street, a couple of famous ex's, Henry Armstrong and Bummy Davis, may do a little fisticuffing in Cleveland in May.

FAMOUS FIRSTS.

The Yankees claim that they are setting a baseball record by having the first spring training camp where the players wear hats and overcoats in the hotel lobby. . . . But they'll have to go a long way to equal the opening of the White Sox camp. When Mrs. Grace Comiskey, the club's boss, arrived just after a flood, she demanded a glass-bottom boat so she could see the practice field.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE.

Jackie Floyd, Philly featherweight who was the hit of the eastern golden gloves championships, will turn pro as soon as the amateur boxing season ends. . . . Greg Rice has been voted the New York A. C. veterans' trophy for "athletic progress during 1942"—progressing two miles at a clip.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Tommy Fitzgerald, Louisville Courier-Journal: "Judging from early reports via dog sled from the northern baseball camps, hip burns this spring won't come from sliding but from sitting on the clubhouse radiator."

SERVICE DEPT.

The 18th Field Artillery boxing team of Fort Sill, Okla., celebrated its victory in the state golden gloves tourney by buying a $100 war bond for Karen Dushane, 13-month-old daughter of Lieut. "Duke" Dushane, former amateur lightweight champion who died in French Morocco last November.

COACH ILL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — E. B. (Speed) Wilson, 46, head basketball coach at Cornell university and former ace Denison university cager, is in "good" condition in University hospital where he is being treated for spinal meningitis. He was stricken Tuesday while visiting his mother.

DIVIDES SQUAD

MUNCIE, Ind.—(AP)—Manager Frankie Frisch divided his Pirate squad for an intra-club game today, scheduling Hank Gornicki, Rip Sewell, Bob Klinger and Wally Herbert for three innings each on the mound.

Mike Has Tough Time Finding Shoes for His 14-Inch Dogs

By DAVE HOFF

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(AP)—Coach Burt Shotton, known affectionately among the Cleveland Indians as "Burt the Squirt," called out to the pitcher's mound: "Okay, Big Mike, that's enough for today."

Manager Lou Boudreau, struggling for a looping fly ball, made the catch and shouted: "twice around the field Mike, and then you can go in."

Big Mike Naymick, all 6 feet 8 inches of him, steamed around the Purdue university baseball park in his 14-inch, size 17 shoes and then headed for the field house.

"I'm really in a spot," Naymick said. "I ordered three pairs of specially built baseball shoes. Now they don't know whether they can fill the bill. I've only got this pair and another torn-up pair down at Baltimore, and I may have to make them last."

The biggest man in baseball—until the Washington Senators came up with 7 foot Dick Ahrens, also a pitcher—Naymick thinks a bad wrist which impeded his speed ball delivery the last two years at Indianapolis, Wilkes-Barre and Baltimore, is all right now. Manager Boudreau lists him as one of the Rookies who may land a regular job with Jim Bagley, Al Milnar, Mel Harder, Vern Kennedy, Al Smith and Chubby Dean, the Cleveland Indians aces.

* * *

"I tried to get in the Marines three years ago," Naymick grunted as he tugged off his huge shoes. "The fellow filled out my papers before he took a look at me and then waved me away. 'Six-six is our limit, Mike,' he told me. And my draft board has called me up two times, but they told me if I were fighting on foreign soil and wore out my shoes I'd just be out of luck. I told them I could fight a Jap or a Nazi as well as anyone else but they won't take me."

Like the rest of the Indians Naymick is in excellent condition.

Shelby Seeking Grid Opponents

SHELBY—Shelby high school officials are seeking a school to fill in an open date on October 22 on the Shelby Whippets' 1943 grid schedule.

Principal Robert Winter said he had contacted Tiffin and Bellevue but could not get a game lined up because the other teams had their schedules full.

The Whippets will meet three non-league foes next fall in addition to the North Central Ohio league opponents.

One team, Canton Lincoln, was dropped from the schedule. Canton was added last year on a one year contract to give Shelby five home games. Canton took the place of Mansfield with whom athletic relations were broken after the grid game played between the two schools in 1941.

The first grid call has been issued for next Monday.

The 1943 grid schedule follows:
Sept. 18, Norwalk here;
Sept. 24, at Willard;
Oct. 1, at Crestline;
Oct. 8, Galion here;
Oct. 15, Ashland here;
Oct. 22, open date;
Oct. 29, at Bucyrus;
Nov. 5, at Mt. Vernon;
Nov. 12, Marion here.

KELTNERS WIN

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians had their first intra-squad game yesterday, a team captained by Ken Keltner defeating a club led by Buddy Rosar, 7 to 1, in seven innings.

Schedule Set For Tourney

Prelims Split Up For Two Gymnasiums.

COLUMBUS—(U P)—The Class A and Class B finals of the annual Ohio high school basketball tournament will be played simultaneously at different hardwood courts this year.

Commissioner H. R. Townsend of the Ohio high school athletic association announced yesterday that the Class B finals will move to Ohio State university while the Class A finals remain at the Columbus auditorium.

The move was decided upon in order to make available a greater number of tickets to fans desiring to see the annual schoolboy classic.

All games will begin at 1 p m CWT. The second game in both classes will be held at 2 p m. and the finals at 8 p. m.

Tickets for both tournaments will go on sale Saturday at 10 a. m., just three hours before game time.

The shifting of the Class B games to Ohio State will give the tournament an additional seating capacity of 2,500, bringing the total to 7,000 as compared with the 10,000 at the fairgrounds coliseum in previous years.

Joe Burghalter of Columbus was added to the officials staff, and R R. MacFarland of South Zanesville and Gosnell Lehman of Columbus to the list of timers and scorers.

Townsend said that by splitting the two classes requests for ticket blocks from competing schools probably could be fulfilled.

CLAIM STATE TITLE WITHOUT RESERVATION

NEW LONDON, Conn.—(AP)—In past years, when Coast Guard academy won or shared Connecticut collegiate athletic honors, it had to be careful to certify them as "minor college" championships.

The reason: Yale, a major university, is in Connecticut but its schedules don't always tie up with the smaller schools.

However, there are no strings on the Connecticut collegiate basketball championship claimed by the Coast Guard cadets for the season of 1942-43 They met Yale in basketball for the first time this year and defeated the Elis as well as University of Connecticut, twice, and Wesleyan, to make a clean sweep of home state opposition.

IN SEMI-FINALS

NEW YORK—(AP)—It will be Georgetown vs. DePaul for the National collegiate A. A. eastern regional basketball championship at Madison Square Garden tonight, with the winner meeting the western regional champion for the national title here next Tuesday. The winner of tonight's finals will meet one of four teams—Wyoming, Oklahoma, Washington or Texas.

Pep Called for Army Screen Test

HARTFORD, Conn — (U.P.) — Willie Pep, world's featherweight champion (New York version), soon may be in the army.

Pep was summoned by his draft board this week for his "screen test" and soon may be classified in 1-A.

DYKES ENTHUSED

FRENCH LICK, Ind.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox have had only one batting drill, but Manager Jimmy Dykes already is so enthused he's named the first three men in the batting order—Rookie Outfielder Thurman Tucker, who batted 315 for Fort Worth, followed by Outfielder Wally Moses and Second Baseman Don Kolloway.

CALLED LATER

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Ray Mack, Cleveland Indians' regular second baseman now classified 1-A by his selective service board, said today he would return to the club's Lafayette, Ind., spring training camp within several days. Mack came to Cleveland after his reclassification and learned he would not be inducted until May or June.

North Wales is said to produce the world's best slate.

HOUSE DEBATES PAY-AS-YOU-GO

Representatives Expected To Write Own Bill, Forgiving Part of Year's Taxes.

13 per cent surtax bracket for all taxpayers on 1942 income.

The taxpayers, who already have paid their first quarterly installment on their 1942 liability, got a preview of the arguments of the various factions in radio speeches last night.

Rep. Frank Carlson, R., Kans., author of legislation embodying the Ruml principles, said the present income tax indebtedness has become a threat to "the solvency of our federal treasury and has become a millstone around the neck of the taxpayer."

Rep. Wesley E. Disney, D., Okla., condemned the Ruml plan as "Utopian" and "false" and added that "this fantastic plan outrivals any scheme for printing press money ever proposed."

Ramspeck predicted that as the bill comes from the house "it will not be the Carlson bill, but a middle ground measure between full abatement of a tax year and the Ways and Means committee bill which provides no abatement at all."

There have been nearly 12 weeks of discussion of pay-as-you-go proposals at this session of congress, and the most recent indications were that the house division on the Ruml-type plan and the administration's plan would be strictly partisan. The Democratic leaders have been lined up almost solidly against a Ruml plan, but house Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts has predicted that an "overwhelming majority" of his party members will vote for it.

Carlson, in his radio speech last night, said that the debate starting today will determine whether the house has the courage to approve a bill which would remove the tax debt that hangs over all taxpayers. He insisted that his bill is designed to prevent the possibility of persons who "made a killing" in 1942 from escaping an income tax on a smaller income in 1943.

FARM MACHINES ASSURED FOR OHIO HARVEST

All Farmers Have To Do Now Is Get Through Heavy Planting Season.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio's farmers today were assured of sufficient farm machinery to harvest next summer's crops — if they can squeeze through the present heaviest planting season in history with the machinery now on hand.

A survey of farm leaders and farm machinery manufacturers revealed that the war production board order increasing steel allotments for farm implement manufacturers came too late to ease a shortage of plows, drills and other planting equipment this spring.

"The reason is that farm machinery manufacturers generally begin production of spring planting equipment the previous fall," explained Carl Feree, president of the Columbus Tractor and Farm Implement club which represents seven major farm implement firms.

"The WPB order increasing steel allotments from approximately 23 per cent of an estimated 30 per cent of the steel used in 1941 was issued early in March—just when spring farm machinery sales ordinarily are at their peak.

"And even though we have permission to purchase additional steel," Feree said, "the situation still is critical since it will take us about three months to get delivery from the mills. That means we won't be in production until sometime in June."

Feree agreed with Elmer F. Kruse, state farm war board chairman, however, that most implement manufacturers will be able to complete manufacture of harvesting machinery before Ohio grain crops ripen.

Kruse also pointed out that Ohio's allotment of farm implements had been increased in several instances, including tractor-cultivators, milking machines, manure spreaders and tractors. He said 2,000 additional corn pickers also had been requested.

The best answer to the impending shortage of planting equipment, he said, is co-operation between the farmers themselves.

"There's no doubt in my mind that Ohio's farmers could do the job at hand with the machinery they now have if we were able to utilize fully every machine," Kruse said.

He added, however, that to do this it would be necessary to reapportion farm implements according to need since some sections have more machinery than actually is needed while other areas were experiencing an acute shortage.

"That's impossible, of course," he said. "You just can't walk up to a farmer and tell him that since two of his neighbors have a combine which he could use that it is up to him to sell his combine to Farmer Jones over in an adjoining county."

Kruse and farm implement makers agreed also that the current machinery shortage is a "hangover" from the depression. Farmers were unable to purchase new implements during the lean years, they said. During the comparative prosperity of 1939-40, they paid up old debts.

"And then the war came along and manufacture of farm machinery was stopped," Feree said. "Now you have a situation where the farmer has plenty of money and nothing to buy with it."

Kruse said the machinery picture was complicated still further by the lack of repair parts and skilled farm machinery mechanics, many of whom either have been inducted into the armed forces or have gone to better-paying jobs in war industry.

He said repair parts still were scarce despite the fact that steel allocations were increased to 160 per cent of 1941 figures.

"Implement companies usually manufacture repair parts during the tag end of the season—during the 60-day period between September 1, October 31," he said. "This year there was no allocation until January 1."

Meanwhile today, members of the fifth board of appeals, located in Mansfield, were informed that practice of "farming out" Cuyahoga county draft appeals, to them would be terminated as soon as the Cleveland appeal board gets caught up in its work. It is now about 3,000 appeals behind, Charles Avery, clerk of the board here, said he had been told.

Such a practice instituted to expediate action on Cleveland appeals," has been termed "definitely illegal" by J. M. Ulmer, Cuyahoga county appeals co-ordinator.

"Our board has handled about 300 Cleveland cases in all, I would judge," Avery said, "with about 120 coming within the past two weeks.

"It had come to the place in Cleveland," Avery went on, "that all sorts of excuses were being used as basis for appeals since the mere asking of deferement meant a delay of about six months. Our board here, which serves 15 counties, has been able to give prompt service so far.

"We have very few farm cases anymore since local boards are taking care of such requests in keeping with amplified rulings on them."

PRE-RATIONING 'RUN' PERILING MEAT STOCKS

Mansfield Dealers Anticipate Two-Day Buying Spree; Hope For Ample Supply.

the most it is practical for them to buy and keep," another dealer said.

A rationing system of their own has already been put into effect by most of the Mansfield dealers because they "want to give everyone something." Consumers trying to buy a quarter of beef have met with a "no soap" attitude from the dealers.

From the Chicago meat packers today came the warning that "Meat comes from livestock, not from ration boks, and the establishment of point values will not of itself guarantee the amount of meat available."

Anyone who expects to see previously half-empty butcher cases suddenly bulge with steaks and chops next week, simply because rationing is in effect, are headed for disappointment, they said.

During April, the government will buy between 30 and 80 per cent of all meat produced in federally-inspected packing plants. The smallest government purchases will be of veal, at 30 per cent, and the largest for lower quality beef, at 80 per cent. It is estimated that government buying during April will consume 35 per cent of all lamb and mutton, 45 per cent of all pork and 50 per cent of all beef produced in these plants.

With the normal meat production slump during the spring and summer months which is just now beginning packers said that the only way the public can have the amount of meat it has been obtaining would be for a reduction in government buying.

No Coupons For Restaurant Steaks

WASHINGTON — (AP) — You won't have to give up a ration coupon when you order a steak at your favorite restaurant—but it will be rationed, too.

Restaurants and other institutional eating places will be limited to 75 per cent or less of the amount of meat, butter, cheese and similar products they used last December when the point rationing program goes into effect Monday, the Office of Price Administration says.

Individual portions aren't restricted yet, but the agricultural department is considering such a limitation.

Egg Rationing Seen Possible

CHICAGO— (INS)—The possibility of egg rationing loomed today as notice was served on Chicago dealers that the government will fill its military and lend-lease requirements for dried and shell eggs.

W. D. Termohlen, assistant chief of the dairy and poultry branch of the food distribution administration, told 300 egg wholesalers and processors in Chicago that egg rationing may become necessary because of an anticipated increase in civilian demand resulting from the rationing of other food.

Termohlen, however, said the per capita civilian egg supply will be larger than in 1942 after the government demands are met.

ASKS DEFEAT OF TWO FARM BILLS

Brown Says Measures Would Wreck Stabilization of Wages and Prices.

steel formula' as well," Brown wrote. "If congress requires the one, it must accept the responsibility for the other."

"The little steel formula is the war labor board's yardstick for allowing a cost-of-living wage adjustment.

It permits an increase of 15 per cent over the wage level of a particular group on January 1, 1941. Further increases are permissible if the board is convinced the 15 per cent does not correct manifest injustices.

Brown said he felt farm prices and farm income already had been raised to fair levels increasing 110 per cent between August 1939 and Jan. uary 1943 while prices farmers pay increased 26 per cent.

"As a result," Brown said, "farm prices which were 30 per cent below parity at the time war broke out in August 1939, reached a level 15 per cent above parity in January of this year.

"Not only have prices the farmers received risen four times as much as the prices farmers pay," he continued, "but they have also risen four times as much as farmer's cost of production including the cost of hired labor. The prices farmers receive therefore yield to the farmer for his own labor and that of his family, a better return than he has ever before known."

Brown said he was "deeply convinced not only that the economic position of the farmer is more favorable than it has ever been before but that farm prices and farm incomes are fair."

"Our job," he said, "is to keep them fair and to preserve the position which the farmer has reached. We can't do so if the stabilization program is destroyed." If that program is destroyed, farm prices will go up—there is no doubt of that—but so will the prices farmers pay and so will farm costs. In the end, the farmers will lose just as they did during and after the last war."

ATTENDS NAVY SCHOOL

BUCYRUS—William E. Rinker, 19, who has been in recruit training at U. S. Naval Training station at Great Lakes, has been selected from his company to attend one of the navy's aviation ordnance schools. He will spend a nine-day leave here before entering upon his new duties.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1943.

There's never been a better time than now to "want but little here below."

An old mystery has been solved—it is the boy fresh off the farm who awakens the bugler.

The "good neighbor policy" is as important in our own states, and our own communities, as it is with our national neighbors.

Considering Manpower Draft

DRAFT of manpower to meet industrial and farm needs is being widely discussed nowadays, officially and otherwise.

War Manpower Commissioner McNutt holds such a course to be "inevitable." President Roosevelt hopes to avert a compulsory labor draft "as long as possible"—which seems to amount to about the same thing.

Differences of views on this subject hinge largely on whether civilian effort is as essential to winning the war as are the fighting forces.

No question is seriously raised, except by a few "conscientious objectors," as to the right of government to compel military service to whatever extent is deemed necessary in preparing for or carrying on defensive or offensive warfare.

But, through some strange quirk of thinking, there is no agreement on the right of governmental compulsion when it comes to tasks involved in supplying fighting forces with ships, planes, tanks, guns, food, and other things they must have to carry on the war.

We are told that this war is being fought for the preservation of this nation and the freedoms of thought and action that its people have enjoyed—and continue to enjoy. It appears that there are still many Americans—including some high in authority—who do not yet consider the danger serious.

Steel Submitted To 'Fake Tests'

RUDE AWAKENING from the pleasant dream that near approach is being made to a perfect world comes with revelation that the absolute honesty essential to such a blissful state has not yet been attained by all members of the human family who would be privileged to participate therein.

This particular revelation has nothing to do with the common run of frailties ordinarily condoned, but reaches into what should be the standard-setting group of Americans.

During progress of a senate investigation this week, according to an Associated Press report, officers and employes of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation "readily acknowledged" that tests had been faked on steel turned out to fill government war orders.

Many technicalities enter into steel-testing procedure, intended to show that the product does—or does not—meet specifications, and testimony disclosed that fake tests were conducted "by mutual agreement among the inspection staff."

An official of the company is quoted as having said, in extenuation of the practice, that "it was honestly believed the plates in question would fully meet all requirements"—that there was "no motive except patriotism . . . a desire to get on with the war."

But that is not the point. Contracts were awarded—and accepted—on the basis of clearly stated specifications which required that the finished product measure up to certain standards intended to guard against defects and weaknesses. Evidence discloses that those tests were "faked."

Those who complain against "too much government supervision" should not overlook occurrences which prove the need for it. When a point of dependable honesty has been reached there will be much less need for policing.

Getting Along On Less Meat

MEAT is important, and most Americans are naturally worried as the supply shrinks and rationing starts. It is probably not so important, however, as many think. Some experts say this nation could get along nicely with about half of its normal consumption. And it may come to that, as the war proceeds.

That is, as far as the domestic and civilian population is concerned. With the military forces it is different. They will get more meat than they have been accustomed to, rather than less.

It is the traditional way to feed armies in meat-eating countries like Britain, western Europe and America. People generally seem to need what they are accustomed to. Yet to most of the people on this earth meat is a rarity. And usually the vegetarians—whether from necessity or choice—seem to get along quite well. You will even find Americans, engaged in hard labor, who don't eat meat and don't care for it.

Thus reduction of the meat supply in this country may not be the calamity that many people think.

Another Henry Cabot Lodge

TRULY "times change and we change with them," and there is a striking example in Washington.

At the close of the last war, when President Wilson proposed a general League of Nations to keep peace in the world thereafter, the effort was blocked in the senate by what Mr. Wilson called "a little group of wilful men." Their leader was Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who headed the powerful foreign relations committee.

Now there is a grandson of that statesman, likewise named Henry Cabot Lodge, in the senate. There is also a similar effort to organize the free nations in what it is hoped will be eventually a world union for peace. And Mr. Lodge, asked about his attitude toward this effort to line up the senate for international co-operation after the war, says: "I think that collaboration between nations is a very commendable aim at this time."

There may be a mental reservation in Mr. Lodge's mind as to past times, but it is evident that there are strong forces in congress, and in the nation, favoring permanent world organization to prevent a third world war. Another such catastrophe, it is feared, might destroy modern civilization.

A recent picture shows Wendell Willkie wearing a hat—with one observer commenting that it's "a long-wanted felt."

Now that Gandhi has resumed eating he seems to have dropped out of the news—at least for the moment.

Time to shorten the shortening.

Paving Way To Postwar Harmony

By CHARLES P. STEWART

ANTHONY EDEN, the British foreign minister, undoubtedly will have by the time his stay in this country ends, more of an all-around acquaintance with official and journalistic Washington than the average American who spends most of his time in our capital.

There are executive, legislative and miscellaneously bureaucratic circles among the sojourners at our seat of government. These subdivide into smaller groups of specialists and they do not intermix much.

A congressman, for instance, on an average has not much to bring him into close contact with the rank-and-file of clerical workers and these, in turn, have varying respective interests of their own.

Consequently if they get upon intimate relations with each other, outside their unrelated spheres of activity, it is largely by accident.

Lawmakers likewise classify in assorted categories. They are all on speaking terms with one another, of course, but they tend, for close relationships, to divide up along party lines and geography, depending on whether they come from north, south, east or west. Then there are the state department's diplomats. What have they and the labor departmental folk to become mutually chummy over?

Anthony Eden, however, arrived in the United States assigned to the task of establishing the closest sort of friendships with absolutely everybody.

EDEN'S MISSION was to knit the United Nations unbreakably together, for both wartime and post-war purposes. He undoubtedly did not anticipate serious difficulty in accomplishing this aim so far as Britain and we Yanks are concerned, although, at that, we do have some few isolationists. We and Comrade Josef Stalin, though, have not been getting on wholly harmoniously lately. There has been no actual clash, but some rather disagreeable remarks have been exchanged between us.

Now, Britain, of all things, is anxious to tie Russia into the contemplated United Nations alignment. It is more essential to John Bull's than to Uncle Sam's welfare to maintain the best possible terms with Moscow. It goes without saying that the three of us are a stronger union than two only. China is urgently desired in it, too, but we and the Chinese are on first rate terms, anyway.

Futhermore, Britons generally have not hitherto been quite as hostile to Communism as the overwhelming majority of Americans have been. In fact, London and Moscow framed up a pretty effective treaty between them, and Anthony Eden was the British foreign minister who framed it.

Eden's visit to our shores, then, was undertaken not alone to consolidate Washington-London relations (both for war and for subsequent peace), which should not be particularly difficult, as I have said, but to smooth out current Washington-Moscow friction.

In order to do that, it obviously was necessary for Anthony to be an exceedingly clever conciliator. Besides convincing our big moguls, like President Roosevelt, State Secretary Cordell Hull and Undersecretary Sumner Welles, it behooves him to convert Yankee public opinion from its strenuous anti-Communistic complex.

"Pressure" was not the thing for him to exert; it was up to him to do it by making himself so Americanly popular that we could not resist him.

Eden is just the person to do this. He understands the Yankee temperament to perfection. His personality is 100 per cent attractive and it is exactly the sort we go for.

NATURALLY, Eden's first contacts were with state department functionaries, but after that he lost no time in getting Washington newspapermen in to see him. He did not begin by talking international politics. He began by praising our American menu. Half starved to death by London rationing, he fell into raptures over our New World food and the way we cook it.

If Eden is as slick at influencing American executives and legislators as he is at appealing to the average American kitchen mechanic, he ought to win the country easily in the course of the few weeks he is scheduled to be here.

The president's taken to drinking milk instead of coffee, and I hear Mr. Lewis has done the same, to avoid any chance that he won't be in just as good fettle for whatever follows.

There was another paragraph in Winston Churchill's Sunday speech that must have clipped a few feathers off a lot of post-war planners. It was this one: "We must beware of trying to build a society in which nobody counts for anything except a politician or an official; a society where enterprise gains no reward and thrift no privileges."

Run that one again slowly, Winnie. It's just possible everybody didn't get it the first time.

Words of the Wise

The wise man has his follies no less than the fool; but here in lies the difference—the follies of the fool are known to the world, but are hidden from himself; the follies of the wise man are known to himself, but hidden from the world.—Colton.

Timely Editorial

Disturbing Oversight.

The Ohio selective service report revealing that in 10 agricultural counties manpower has been drawn off twice as much on an average by industry as by the armed forces disposes of the charge that the army is to blame for a farm manpower shortage. However, no thoughtful person believed that easy explanation anyway.

Most observers realized that farm manpower also was being lost to industry, even though they lacked statistics concerning the rate. The shift from farm to factory was a matter of common knowledge. Behind it lay a glaring omission in war planning. Food resources were taken for granted.

Until recently, nothing whatever was done to stop the loss of farm labor, though long ago the army recognized the need for doing something about the loss of key industrial employes. The food problem was then and still is the forgotten factor in the war program.—Canton Repository.

Loss of Mailing Privileges Hits Magazines Censured By NODL

WASHINGTON — Efficient Postmaster General Frank Walker has got himself into a situation whereby certain zealots of the church to which he belongs have become unofficial censors of American magazines. And Frank is playing into their hands.

The situation has gone so far that scores of American magazines, before going to press, send their manuscripts to the representative of Bishop John F. Noll, of the Catholic National Organization for Decent Literature, where they are examined.

The NODL office is at 1312 Massachusetts Ave., Washington, and is under the supervision of William Smith, who reports to Bishop Noll in Ft. Wayne, Ind. It has no connection at all with the government, except as a volunteer adviser to Frank Walker's post office department.

Through the powerful weapon of removing magazines from the second class mailing list, a most effective censorship is being used daily. Undoubtedly some censorship of magazines may be necessary. Certainly no one wants the U. S. mails, which are subsidized by the government, used for the distribution of salacious literature. However, the NODL has set itself up as the unofficial censor.

Here is one report from William Smith, head of the office in Washington, to his chief, Bishop Noll, which shows how the system works:

"Your Excellency:

"During the past week, Mr. Selinka, counsel for the Dell Publishing company, brought to me a revised dummy of Modern Romances magazine. Since they made the changes which I suggested I have already written to your excellency that this magazine does not violate the code.

"Mr. William H. Fawcett, accompanied by the new editorial director of their Confession magazines, Mr. William H. Lingel, called on me with the dummy of Romantic Story. I carefully read this dummy, made a few minor changes in it, but had to object to one of the stories. Mr. Lingel assured me that this story and the others I objected to would be changed. . . .

"I talked to Mr. Hassel, counsel in the solicitor's office of the post office department. He told that the following magazines had been cited for hearings to show cause why their second class mailing privileges should not be revoked. They are: Special Detective Cases, Romantic Story, Crime Confession. I shall of course attend these hearings.

"The post office department is apparently trying to avoid as much publicity as possible with regard to these hearings because no news releases were sent out naming the magazines or giving the dates and times of the hearings.

"Most respectfully yours,

William Smith."

Postmaster General Walker, when questioned by the Washington Merry-Go-Round, indignantly denied that members of his own religious faith were influencing his policy in barring magazines from the mails.

However, the Acolyte, organ of the National Organization for Decent Literature, gives him full credit.

Hailing a long list of magazines recently barred from the mails, the NODL Acolyte says: "POSTMASTER GENERAL AIDS NODL CAMPAIGN—The U. S. Post Office Department has recently revoked or denied the second-class mailing privilege to certain magazines. The department is to be commended for its vigilance and efficiency in citing those magazines and in refusing to grant second class mailing privileges to offensive publications."

Then follows a list, all but two of which were cited by NODL before Frank Walker acted. The list includes:, College Humor, Real Screen Fun, Squads Riot, Flynn's Detective, Amazing Detective, Front Page Detective, Film Fun, Spotlight Detective, Argosy, Gripping Detective Cases, Exclusive Detective.

Another letter to Bishop Noll, from Arthur D. Maguire, Detroit, Mich., also indicates the recognition Frank Walker is given by leading Catholics for this new unofficial censorship. Maguire's letter, addressed to Bishop Noll, says in part:

"Frank Walker, is as you know, a graduate of Notre Dame, and I am sure he will do what he can within the limits of his power to stop this Knickerbocker Company using the mails in this way."

Frank Walker came through all right, for in a letter to Mr. Maguire, Walker's Solicitor of the Post Office Department Vincent M. Miles, said:

"The Postmaster General has referred to me your letter of the 28th ultimo, transmitting a folder advertising various books, received through the mails from the Knickerbocker Publishing Company, 92 Liberty Street, New York.

"This circular is regarded as non-mailable and the matter will have attention."

The post office committee which handles censorship for Frank Walker is composed of W. C. O'Brien, Catholic, John J. Gregory, Catholic, and Calvin W. Hassell, Episcopalian.

Note: The Washington office of the NODL goes into the most minute detail in examining manuscripts. For instance one editor was required to change the line "his lips pressed hers" to read "his lips touched hers."

Uncomfortably Close to Enemy Lines; "Grapevine" Signal System Surprisingly Fast.

NORTH AFRICA—We finished the salvage work on the wrecked planes, and cooked our supper on the ground. As we ate, the soldier-mechanics got to talking about the trip, and our presence so close to enemy territory.

"Back in the States," one of the truck drivers said, "the commanding officer made us a speech one day. He told us we were lucky to be driving trucks. Almost made us feel like slackers. Said we'd go through the whole war and never be within 500 miles of the enemy. I'd like to get hold of that guy now. He's still back there."

"And here we are within 30 miles of the Germans," one boy said.

"Thirty miles?" the officer said. "It's only 20 miles."

"I'm going to make it 10 miles in the column," I chimed in. "We've got to be heroes, haven't we?" That set the boys off. They told me how to write the columns about our trip.

"Write about digging the ditch," they said. "Tell them how we dug our heads off and got finished just as a German plane came over. You don't have to say it was 30,000 feet high and couldn't have seen us with bifocals."

That's the way they joke about it, but they're only half-joking all the time. The boys were really afraid of strafing. They held a consultation about going home. One soldier and myself wanted to spend the night there, and then make the long journey home next day.

But the mechanics and truck drivers didn't relish driving in daytime so near the enemy lines. They voted to leave that night. And leave we did. We finished our supper, gave what rations were left to the French, rounded up our Arab guide, and pulled out just at dusk.

WE DROVE all night, without lights. It was easy to follow the tracks. Yet we had to cross rocky river beds with steep banks, and dodge countless holes, and thread our way over drifted sand dunes, and pick the right trail where tracks branched out in all directions.

It was a touchingly beautiful night. The sky was cloudless and the moon so bright that it dimmed out all but a few of the most lustrous stars. And it was warm when we started. We all felt relieved, somehow, and in high spirits.

But we had forgotten the chill that comes with night on the desert. By 8 o'clock we were getting cold. By 9 we were scrunched on the floor and wrapped in blankets. From 10 on we were in an agony of cold. Nothing could keep it out. Finally it became an intense pain, and we suffered a sleepy horror from it all night.

The slow dusty miles dribbled away behind us in the moonlight. Far off little red fires dotted the desert where the shepherds camped. Dark forms of grazing camels passed in the weird light. Once we stopped and turned off the motors, and could hear a German plane very high in the night sky. And once our Arab friend "Wah," apparently unaccustomed to motoring, got car-sick and we had to stop and let him out for a while.

We went through little towns, and awakened the dogs. At 2 a. m. we came back past our first French garrison, where guards stand watch on the high walls day and night. Their grapevine signal system is uncanny. For when we pulled up the commandant was out of bed, with an overcoat over his pajamas, waiting for us.

I've heard tales of the Arab grapevine. They tell of one case where it carried the news of a crashed German plane 150 miles, faster than the French army's wireless system.

We said goodby to "Wah" and shook hands with the commandant and barged on into the night. The miles and hours grew longer as we neared home. The last 20 miles seemed to take weeks. Once the driver stopped for our routine stretch, and the rigidly cold soldiers growled at him to keep going.

FINALLY we came home, an hour before daylight, and just as the moon played out on us. We hadn't seen any war, but we had seen the Sahara by day and by night.

"I'll be telling my grandchildren some day about the time I crossed the Sahara Desert," one of the soldiers said.

"You didn't cross it," another one said.

"Oh well, what the hell. I crossed part of it. Let's get to bed and stay there all day."

And that's what we did.

A Farmer's Diary — By CALVIN A. BYERS

And So They Married

A NEIGHBOR'S daughter was a neat, shy, wisp of a girl, an earnest student and a fair musician. She fell in love with a big young man just before he was called into the army, and blossomed out into an eager, vital woman. I saw them together at apple-picking time—they seemed to 'belong' and to know it.

So I was glad to hear that yesterday they were married, at their village church, by candlelight, on the first day of his furlough. Now he has gone back to the army camp and she will live at home with her parents "for the duration."

This same story, with variations, is happening in every rural community. Those of us who have worked in double harness happily for years should be most able to sympathize with the hopes and the difficulties of such young couples.

Lots of nonsense is written about marriage. It is treated as a form—a few mumbled words—when every person should know that a marriage cannot be made in a minute. Each couple must make their own. Young marriages and hasty marriages are oftenest condemned, perhaps—but my observation is that the time for a man to marry is whenever he can get the right girl to have him! It is never too soon to start a good association—nor too early to break off a poor one.

Marriage should be the beginning of a richer life—the foundation stone of tomorrow's world—not a jest or an experiment. A man who marries a good girl and goes to war will have something to come back to, somebody to pray for him, happy hours to remember—perhaps even a son to bear his name.

Hazard is there, certainly—life itself is hazard. But hazard adds zest to living. Life's sweetest moments are often those snatched from the jaws of death.

"Seeing either sex alone is half itself;
And in true marriage lies nor equal nor unequal;"
For woman is not undeveloped man, but diverse;
Could we make her as man, sweet Love were slain . . .
Yet in the long years liker must they grow;
The man be more of woman, she of man;
He gain in sweetness and in moral height,
Nor lose the wrestling thews that throw the world . . .
Till at the last she set herself to man
Like perfect music unto noble words . . ."

Bill suspected that in his (Bill's) new home Scott did not feel free to ask for food and liquor. In this second home Scott was a stranger, his charm wasted on Evelyn who expected people to entertain her and serve her. But at least Carol had not married Scott. Thank God for that!

He thought, "I had a prolonged adolescence where people are concerned. I depended on Carol's insight. I thought Scott was a good fellow. I thought he was a friend. And all he cared about was what he got out of us. To him everybody is or is not a contact! . . . I used to throw that word about a lot until Carol said it was a word to be used only in business and then cautiously. She hated it."

Lila bent her curly brown head toward him. "We're out of soda, Bill. Will you see if you can catch the eye of the waiter? It's a mad-house, isn't it? I'm all for ducking out when the speeches start . . . No, my conscience won't hurt. Dutch gave more than he could afford and I've been working like a Turk for the cause. I'm all for it, but I do hate speeches."

"I'm ready to go any time." He caught the eye of the waiter who came, running. "Three more of soda and more ice . . ." And then to Lila, "Sure you don't want to dance?"

"Sure. The music is better to listen to. It's really wonderful. We have most of his recordings."

"He? Oh, you mean."

"Rand Andrews," Lila said, "and his band. In catching up with movie gossip from reading magazines today at the hairdresser's, I see he's bound next for Hollywood to do a picture. Think of the money we are paying him that could go to charity. I don't think it should be necessary to throw a brawl in order to awaken people to give to the poor and sick. I'm all agin' this sort of thing."

Bill said, absently, "I am too," and because he had nothing else to divert him he lifted his head and looked at Rand Andrews. "Not a bad looking guy," he said finally.

Lila laughed. "That's white of you, admitting that. As a matter of fact, darling, he's the lad of the moment. Packs em' in wherever he goes. The fair-haired boy of my sometimes disgusting sex. He'll make a million this year. They have to make it while they're young and good at the kind of music the kids want. He'll probably marry into society and take up polo . . . Ho-hum!"

Bill smiled. But it wasn't easy to smile tonight. It was as though his face were frozen and he was trying to thaw it out. And every once in a while he thought, "I'm not going to the office on Monday, I haven't a job. I don't know where to start to look for another. But I've got to dig in and start. I can't let this beat me. I won't. I won't be all washed up because Thelma is jealous of Evelyn. Those are brave words, my boy. Very brave words. But you have two women to support and Carol is going to get her money if I have to dig ditches for it. I don't want her to know what happened. Pride, I guess. I'm a fine one to have pride where she is concerned. I certainly ripped hers to pieces. I kicked her out. I held her up to everybody as a woman I wanted to get rid of. What wouldn't I give to undo it? It was pretty easy to do. It's the undoing that makes you sweat."

When Evelyn and the others returned to the table, Lila said, "I'm in favor of leaving before the speeches. Come out to our place. There's a fire going and lots to eat and drink and we have all of Rand Andrews' recordings. We can dance there. Oh, come on, please. It'll be much nicer. Everybody here has seen our new dresses; we've given until it hurts and the mayor had nodded to us."

Barbara said, "I'm willing. It's such a mob here you really can't dance."

"And you can't get any service," Max said.

The docile Dee said, "I'd love to, Lila. And I can phone from your place about Diana. We left her with a new maid tonight and I'm a little anxious."

Johnny and Dutch were also agreeable.

Bill saw Evelyn turn pale.

"You don't want to leave?" he asked.

There was an odd pleading in her voice. "No," she said. "No, I don't. We don't have to go, do we, Bill? Oh, but suppose you go and I'll stay a while longer."

"If you stay, I'll stay, of course. I'm not going to leave you alone here."

She put her hand on his arm. That was odd, too, since she was never demonstrative. "No, no, please. I—I just want to stay and listen to the music and look at the people. Really, I want to. Leave the car for me and I'll come along in a few minutes. Don't delay the others. I won't stay long."

"I can't leave you here alone, Evelyn."

The color had come back to her face and she was smiling and her eyes were sparkling. "Please," she said. "Please go along with the others. I—I want you to."

Under ordinary circumstances he would never have left her. But tonight was no ordinary night for him. He was desperately worried and the whole colorful, moving, noisy scene depressed him. He was sick at heart. He felt he couldn't bear to stay a minute longer and yet he hated to take Evelyn away when obviously she wanted so much to stay.

It was unlike her to want anything so much. Usually she was indifferent to her surroundings as long as she was comfortable. Nothing ever mattered tremendously to her, and he had never known her to be enthusiastic about anything. He had come to treat her as though she were a spoiled child, not realizing that a man is frequently extremely kind to a girl with whom he is no longer in love.

Lila said, "Oh, she'll be all right, Bill. Dutch left me in a restaurant in New York once when he [illegible] tant pho[illegible] make earli[illegible]

Johnny said, "If we're going, let's go. The mayor is clearing his throat."

Reluctantly Bill left with them. At the entrance he almost went back when he saw Evelyn sitting at the table alone, her dark red wrap drawn over her shoulders, her head high and sleek and beautiful . . . But she didn't look back at him.

Max put his hand on Bill's shoulder. "That's a woman for you. Always different. Let's go. Let's get out of this mob. Evelyn will be okay."

Evelyn was unconscious of the color and the moving throng and of the people dancing by the table who stared at her. All evening she had moved in a happy daze, eating little, drinking little, speaking little until the suggestion to leave had seemed to shake the earth. Ever since the day she had read that Rand would play at the charity ball, her mind for [illegible]ractical things had been than ever and she had [illegible]nly for tonight to see Rand again and to be beautiful for him again. The moment Bill and the others left she forgot them as though they had never existed.

From where I sit ...

Sam Abernethy always said: "Curiosity may kill a cat—but I'm no cat." Which is Sam's way of saying that when he's curious about something he goes out and gets the facts.

Seems our government feels the same way. After hearing rumors about our soldiers drinking too much—government people went after the facts. They got the evidence on what our boys drink . . . and don't drink.

The government found out our Army's the best behaved in history. More'n half of 'em drink beer—nothing stronger. And the government found that selling 3.2 beer in Army camps is one reason why our Army is so temperate.

From where I sit, there isn't much cause to worry about our men in the Army. Looks like they can take care o' themselves—and take care o' the Nazis and the Japs, too.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY READ FOR MISS TURNER

Rev. Albert L. Linder Reads Service In Park Avenue Baptist Church; Bride's Sisters Assist As Vocalist, Maid of Honor.

By MARY-JAYNE OAKES

THE BEAUTIFUL and impressive ceremony, which united in marriage Miss Eileen Turner and Charles F. Burton was read, Wednesday night, before the relatives and many friends of the couple by Rev. Albert L. Linder in the Park Avenue Baptist church at 7:30.

The bride chose a lovely white satin and lace gown with sweetheart neckline and sleeves of fingertip length which was fashioned on princess lines. The skirt of the gown extended into an extremely long train. The bride's full veil of tulle was styled with inserts of lace and held in place by a halo of orange blossoms. Her lovely arm bouquet of white roses and gardenias was tied with long, white satin streamers.

Walter A. Turner escorted his daughter to the altar which was banked with palms ferns and arrangements of huckleberry and eucalyptus greens, and gave her in marriage to Mr. Burton. Two seven-branch candelabra, baskets of Picardy gladioli and satin ribbons, to mark the pews of relatives, completed the church decorations.

Miss Joan Turner, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a gown of pink chiffon and lace, styled with short sleeves, full skirt and round neckline. Miss Turner's matron of honor, Mrs. Dorothy Sayers, was attired in blue, fashioned the same as the maid of honor's gown. Both wore lockets of gold, gifts of the bride, and carried arm bouquets of pastel flowers, sweet peas in lavender and pale pink, pink and yellow roses and pink daisies. The ribbons on the bouquets matched the attendants' gowns.

Ushers at the wedding included Richard Burton, brother of the bridegroom, Alex Sayers, Walter Lake and Ralph Hulit, all close friends of the bridegroom. The bridegroom's father, L. E. Burton, was his son's best man.

Mrs. Turner was attired in a navy blue dress, trimmed with white. She wore orchid and navy accessories. Black was worn by Mrs. Burton, who completed her costume with beige and black accessories. Both wore corsages of gardenias.

Nuptial music was played by Fred Sutcliff, at the organ, and Miss Jean Turner, sister of the bride, vocalist. Miss Turner sang "I Love You Truly" by Bond. Preceding the ceremony, Mr. Sutcliff played "Oh, Promise Me" by DeKoven, "At Dawning" by Cadman, "Liebestraum" by Lizst and "Anchors Aweigh." During the ceremony, Mr. Sutcliff presented "Indian Love Call" by Friml and "Intermezzo" by Provost. He also included "Bridal Chorus" by Wagner and Mendelsohn's "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin."

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor for 125 guests. Luncheon was served buffet style at a long table centered with a five-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Three-branch candelabra, on either side of the cake, lighted the table.

When the newly married couple left on their wedding trip, the whereabouts of which was not disclosed, the new Mrs. Burton was attired in a gold print jersey dress over which she wore a gold box style topper. Her accessories were black. She wore a corsage of gardenias and roses.

The former Miss Turner is a graduate of Springfield Township high school and Mansfield Business Training school. She has been employed at the H. L. Reed company.

Mr. Burton, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Burton, 194 Sycamore street, was employed at the Ohio Public Service company before entering the United States naval reserve in October, 1942. He has received his third class petty officer's rating and will attend Gyno Compass school in San Diego, Cal., where he and Mrs. Burton will make their home.

Mrs. Joe Murphy, Indianapolis, Ind., was an out-of-town guest.

Miss Patterson Named President Of Study Club

Election of officers was held Wednesday afternoon by members of the Wednesday Study club, who named Miss Bertha Patterson as president for the coming year when the club met at the home of Mrs. Harry Cave, 42 Blymyer avenue.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Paul E. Sturges, vice president; Mrs. John Hattery, treasurer, and Mrs. Wallace Campbell, secretary. Three guests, Mrs. Avery Hand, Mrs. Ruth Grimm, and Mrs. Kenson of California, attended the meeting.

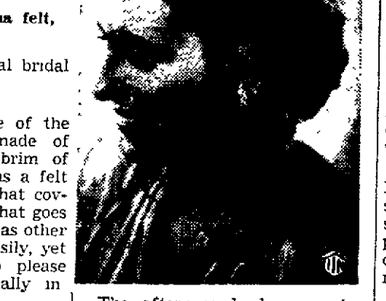
"Lands Down Under" was presented by Mrs. Charles Conklin who had charge of Wednesday's program. Mrs. Conklin stated that in area and in form of government, Australia was similar to the United States. The country is sparsely populated, due to vast areas that are uninhabitable.

Canberra, the capital, not yet completed, is one of the finest examples of city planning. It was planned by a native of Chicago, Ill.

Fishing, according to Mrs. Conklin, is the Cinderella industry of Australia. Wheat, cotton, and wool are the chief exports. In the cultural region, Australia has made worthy offering in the field of poetry, prose, music, art and drama.

The business session of the club meeting was conducted by Miss Patterson. On April 7, the club will meet for a 1 o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. Edward Loughridge, Woodhill road.

Pretty Hats for Hasty Weddings



Left, straw postillion in brown and white; top right, aqua felt, stitched felt leaves; below, yellow-gold daisy calot.

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

These days a wedding can be planned and executed as quickly as a girl can choose a becoming outfit. Judging from the profusion of charming hats and dresses that are available now in stores from coast to coast, any girl can be a bride in really short order.

Informal weddings are more popular than ever, for they save time; they're in our 1943 spirit of patriotic economy. So more and more war brides are saying, "I Do" in tailored or soft suits, or in street-length or ankle-length dresses completed by hats that are real assets at the wedding as well as in her trousseau.

If she marries in a suit, there are any number of hats that are perfect suit-mates. If it is a morning wedding, the bride will be crisp, yet feminine, in one of the new felts veiled in typical bridal tradition.

Felt Leaf Trim.

The felt shown in one of the above photographs is made of aqua felt with a cuff brim of stitched felt leaves. It has a felt bow in back and a veil that covers the face. This type of hat goes with a pompadour as well as other hair-dos, and it travels easily, yet is glamorous enough to please even the most romantically inclined.

A noon wedding might suggest a soft suit dress in wool or rayon crepe, freshened with one of the new straw postillion hats trimmed in bride's white pique. The model pictured is a high-crowned hat made of milan straw in pecan brown. It is trimmed with snowy pique and has a white dotted veil. Hats in this mood are young, flattering and effective partners for other suits as well as for spring prints.

The afternoon bride, marrying at home or in church, has a delicate array of soft pastel crepe frocks from which to choose. With these she will find equally delightful flower toques and calots in luscious tones that bring out the glow of natural skin tones. The calot, here, is made entirely of yellow-gold daisies. The becoming face veil is in a soft green color and is appliqued with shiny green leaves.

Do Not Force Children to Apologize

By GARRY C MYERS, Ph.D.

I must have been about 9 when, my return from school one day, kicked over a pail of black walts which I knew an elderly woman who lived all alone had picked . remember the fun I experienced in scattering those walnuts; o I remember telling about it the family meal that evening. st why I used such bad judgnt as to tell it I don't know. yway, my father sternly reked me and told me I had to next day and apologize to the man for my offense.

Of Doubtful Wisdom.

I sensed the gravity of my mised and was overwhelmed with ef and worry at the thought of crying out the command. Knowthat my father rarely rersed his decision in such mats, I was happily surprised en he said he would let me off time. Right now I am not sure penalty he first announced uld not have been good for me. Nevertheless, in most instances, doubt the wisdom of a forced ology. It might be effective if, in my case, the offender sensed seriousness of the deed. But as often happens, the offender rely apologizes as the easy way being insincere, the effect y be bad. Usually a forced tement of "I am sorry" or "I n't do it again" by a child after has been punished is not good. Then there are times when one ght prevail on the child to ose of his own will to apologize a person or group.

Of more doubtful value and er harm is to compel a child to fess when you already know is guilty of some particular ong. A better way is to tell him did it, make clear the seriouss of the deed, and punish him not as you see fit. But don't ner a child, question or crosstion, thus tempting him to lie. Suppose you don't have the ts but suspect that your child done something wrong, why n then try to make him cons? There is no better way to rt him lying.

Avoid Trials.

f at last he is caught and puned for the offense, he is more ly to connect the punishment h having been caught than h the misdemeanor, in which nt he resolves to be more skillnext time. The upshot of it all or him to grow more ready to eive henceforth.

Avoid trials. Don't make of irself a prosecuting attorney detective or him a prisonerness at the bar. Protect him n temptation.

Solving Parent Problems.

). Do you believe in reading y talks to young children.

.. Yes; except those that are iceably fearful. The child from ut two to five lives in a world make-believe. Help keep alive precious imagination which be hampered all too soon by cold world of reality.

). Would you require a child 9 years old to practice his piano lesson?

A. Yes; for at least 20 minutes a day regularly. I would let him choose between doing so for 20 minutes or sitting doing nothing for 40 minutes. This would be far better than the usual nagging.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, March 26.

A day of problems and conflicting circumstances with what is astrologically known as "mixed influences" is forecast from the puzzling lunar chart. There are signs of highly stimulated activities, with all manner of public as well as private interests coming up for wise and calculated disposal. Many factors are at work, with an omen of estrangements or obstructions.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshhold of a year to tax their efficiency, sound sense, determination and acumen, as well as their ability to make revolutionary and bold strokes to gain their inspiring objectives, even though estrangements, separations, radical change and personal antagonisms may arise.

A child born on this day may be exceptionally talented, original and versatile, with high ambitions and aspirations. These may attract support from high places.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

MANY GAMES FOUND

Part scores and games aplenty have been produced by proper use of the one-over-one bidding principle. There are countless hands too weak for a 1-No Trump response to an opening suit bid, but containing a suit long enough to be shown safely at the range of one, if your pair is not making such a bid guarantee a trick or so in high cards. Revealing such a suit may disclose the best declaration for the hand.

	♠ 7 5 ♥ 10 8 3 ♦ Q J 10 6 4 3 ♣ 9 5
♠ Q 6 2 ♥ A Q 9 6 -2 ♦ 7 5 ♣ J 7 4	N W E S	♠ J 10 9 8 ♥ K J 7 5 4 ♦ A K ♣ 10 8
	♠ A K 4 3 ♥ None ♦ 9 8 2 ♣ A K Q 6 3 2

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1. 1♣	Pass	Pass	1♥
1♠	2♥	Pass	3♥
4♣	4♥
2. 1♣	Pass	1♦	1♥
2♠	3♥	4♦	4♥
5♦	Pass	Pass	Dbl

Old-fashioned tactics, still favored by a few otherwise sound bidders, were in use by North and South at Table 1. With them a suit bid of one in response would show about a high card trick in the hand. So North, much too weak for 1-No Trump, had to pass. Never thereafter could North show his holding, so the opponents easily bought the contract and got set just one trick at 4-Hearts, with the loss of two in each black suit.

At the second table, under more modern conventions, 1-Diamond could have been called on either quite a strong hand or a very weak one with plenty of length if the responder was prepared to sign off later by rebidding it. That call hit South's three-card holding, making his hand so strong he could force mightily with that 2-Spade bid on his second turn, guaranteeing game strength. After that North was easily able to bid again, and a game was the reward, enhanced by East's double. Only two trump tricks were lost.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ Q 6 5 4 ♥ A 4 2 ♦ A 8 4 2 ♣ K 10
♠ J 10 9 2 ♥ 10 5 3 ♦ Q 9 7 3 ♣ 8 7	N W E S	♠ 8 7 3 ♥ K Q J 7 ♦ J 10 ♣ 6 5 3 2
	♠ A K ♥ 9 8 6 ♦ K 6 5 ♣ A Q J 9 4

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

How would you play for 6-No Trumps as South on this deal, after West leads the heart 10?

These Are The Things That Count

By MME QUI VIVE

Pretty girls are almost a drug on the market. You'll see them everywhere. They're behind counters, they're working in factories, they're flaunting their loveliness wherever human beings gather. Complexions have a good rating, coiffures were never so chic and becoming, clothes so simple and flattering to good figures.

The plain woman is one who has not discovered her goodlooks possibilities. A clever hair stylist and a smart dressmaker can transform any ugly duckling into a swan. Though we're working like dray horses, most of us, we still sneak a little time for complexion buttering, hair curling and exercises that are necessary to retain the svelte shape.

Count off your girl friends one by one. It may start you into taking some other girl's quality of charm and making it your own, thereby adding to your sum total of attractiveness.

Let's consider Myrtle. Hair all right, figure so-so; she would not take a beauty prize. But don't you love the way she stands by her husband, listens to him attentively, laughs at his old jokes, makes excuses for his clumsiness and social errors?

Now we'll put Annabelle under the microscope. Really, her ancestors did not do well by her. They handed her freckles and hair of an uncertain color and she'd never win by a nose because hers is upturned, but not saucy.

Well, she had to do something to give herself a touch of splendor, so she got interested in dancing to learn to move gracefully. She went to a gym regularly, too, to keep her figure trim. No mannequin could have a lovelier silhouette. When she walks she seems to be floating through the air. She holds her head queenly fully. There is something queenly about her. She appears distinguished. She knows how to enter a room, how to wear clothes with flair, how to choose the flattering chapeau. She has made a compelling and attractive picture of herself.

Enthusiasms bring a glow. There's something vitalizing about them, if they are worthy. Start a garden fan talking; watch her face light up. Women who haven't anything to do seldom have anything interesting to talk about. They're just sitting around waiting to die. We still have some of them with us, despite the need of helping hands in war efforts.

You don't have to be young to be charming. There are old ladies who are keen about everything, up to everything, have a bit of nonsense on the tip of the tongue. They'll always be young.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

At Mary's poignant cry, I put a compelling hand on her arm.

"You haven't failed at all," I told her with emphasis. "Those three over there," indicating Olina, Noel and Georges, "haven't the faintest idea that you were acting."

"Oho!" Dicky struck in with a quizzical grin at me. "So you're in on this, too, are you? I might have known." Then he swung me so that I faced Philip and Olga and went on, "I don't know what this is all about, but it's been my lot to be married to this gal for quite some time, and I've always found that when there's a particularly interesting pot boiling you'll generally find her near it and stirring the mess diligently. And it's my private opinion that's what she's up to now."

"I don't doubt it," Philip Veritzen said with a broad smile at me, "but I'm waiting to her from Mary," and his eyes were still puzzled.

But Olga, with wisdom-filled eyes, put her hand upon his arm.

Olga Praises Mary.

"Don't press Mary, now, dearest," she said with gentle insistence. "She's had about all she can stand. Later, perhaps, she will tell us about it." Then looking at Mary with a smile she said:

"I think I understand, Mary dear, and I thank you—and salute you."

There was a sudden glow in Mary's face and eyes, and with a quick, beautiful gesture she lifted Olga's hand to her lipe and kissed it.

"That is reward enough for a much harder undertaking," she said. "But I think you should punish me instead for my presumption."

Olga shook her head emphatically.

"Never again use that word," she said. "And now, my Philip, if you will excuse me, I will go and see how the supper preparations are coming on."

"I will go with you," he said promptly, and as they left the room Dicky grinned at his niece.

"Look here, brat!" he said. "Olga may have switched old Phil off the track, but me? I'm the demon engineer. You come clean pronto, or there won't be enough left of you to pick up from the cowcatcher."

Mary giggled, but I struck in with decision.

"There isn't time, Dicky," I told him, "and besides, this isn't the place. I promise you shall know all about it at the first opportunity. But look! There comes Olga back again."

"Will I ever hold you to that promise!" Dicky whispered. Then Olga focused everyone's attention as she spoke in her clear, musical voice and gracious manner.

"We are not being formal tonight," she said, "but I know you will all be glad to know that supper is ready. Will you come this way, please?"

Noel Disturbed.

Then I saw Noel say something evidently an excuse to Georges and Olina, and come toward us, his face resembling a thundercloud, and Mary caught her breath.

"Oh, dear," she said, "the husband is on the warpath."

"Dicky," I said with decision, "take Mary into the supper room without looking back. I'll bring Noel in."

Mary clutched her uncle's arm frantically.

"Hurry, Uncle Dicky!" she breathed, but he did not need the injunction. He already was leading her toward Olga as fast as he could.

Olga caught my eye and gave a nod of approval, which Noel did not see as he looked down at me with stormy eyes.

"Is Mary afraid I'm going to make a scene at my stepmother's party?" he asked scornfully.

SCHOOL ADDS COURSES FOR FARM WORKERS

New Hampshire University Has Special Training For Women Farm Hands.

DURHAM, N. H., — (INS) — To meet the demand for increased farm labor and to train more workers — especially women — in the production of food for victory, the University of New Hampshire this spring added two agricultural courses to those already being given.

Women, farm women, have always had a finger in farm work. Now women, all women, not already engaged in industry directly contributing to the war effort, are being urged by the government to lend, not only a hand, but both their arms and backs to feeding the army and the home front.

The new courses at the University are a three-week course to prepare for work in dairy industry and a two-year course in vocational agriculture for preparatory students who have finished two years of high school.

The first short dairy course given with a limited registration as an experiment to replenish immediately the dairy farmers' labor shortage and increase the production of dairy foods, was just ended and it will be followed by other short courses. Among the women learning dairy work are Mrs. Marioon H. Englehardt, wife of the president of the university.

Training in this short course is mostly involved with practical skill required in the production and handling of milk—milking, both by hand and machine; care of equipment; feeding and management of the milking herd, the herd sire, and young stock; milk room operations; and care of the dairy barn.

BUYS BONDS WITH NICKELS

JOHNSTOWN, Pa —(U P)—Ten-year-old Leonard Colosimo, jr., ran errands for a year and a half so he could save nickels to "sink the Axis." Young Colosimo purchased a $100 war bond with 1,500 "liberty head" or "victory nickels," as he described them.

Sounds Plea for Coffee Cans to Salvage Grease

Another type of appeal for tin cans came today from the Office of Civilian Defense when Mrs. John M. Pierce, chief of war services, asked Mansfielders to donate cans with tight lids, preferably one-pound coffee containers, to be used in salvaging household greases.

Girl Scouts will label such cans and distribute them to homes after block leaders, beginning April 5, visit the homes in their districts to explain the need of salvaging such "waste matter" for the war effort. Monthly collections of the material will be made by the Scouts.

Proceeds of sales of the greases, of animal or mineral origin, will be used by the girls in promoting their own scouting program in Mansfield. Sales will be made to local meat dealers.

Regular collections of the greases will be made by a district processing plant which will treat the salvage for obtaining its glycerin which will be sent to war munitions plants for the manufacture of explosives. The remainder will be used in soap manufacture.

If the salvaged grease becomes rancid it also becomes worthless for war purposes. Thus Mrs. Pierce urges householders to keep the salvage can in a cool place.

URGES GARDENERS TO BE SURE THEY HAVE GOOD WATER SUPPLY

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Ohioans who expect to water their vegetable gardens in 1943 have been warned by Ohio State university agricultural engineers to be sure of a water supply for irrigation purposes before deciding on the size of the garden.

Stating that a garden 100 by 50 feet will require about 3,000 gallons of water per week, engineers revealed the following.

Sprinkling the garden with a hose is largely wasted effort. The water must be applied over a period long enough to permit it to soak down into the soil to obtain results worth the labor. Rapid application of water will damage the soil and will wash away plant food which the vegetables need.

The best methods of irrigating a garden are to run the water into furrows, apply it with an overhead sprinkler system, or use porus fabric hose which permits the water to seep out gradually. Rotary sprinklers are available which work with as little as 150 gallons per hour and which apply water on an area 60 feet in diameter.

One heavy application of water is much better than a number of light ones, even though the amount of water applied is the same with both systems. Water should be applied only as rapidly as it will soak into the soil.

RIDES CHILDREN'S BUS

BAR HARBOR, Me —(U P)— "Mary had a little—deer." Bambi, a deer, never misses the bus in Bar Harbor, when it carries children to the district school. Not allowed in the school, the community's pet stays in the bus and the driver drops her off on the way back at the home of Leslie and Allison Smith, whose dad, a game warden, found the animal.

TO EVERY AMERICAN HOUSEWIFE!

In these busy war days, it is a patriotic "must" that everyone make the fullest use of all the necessities of life—clothing, fuel and food. Of these three—food ranks high—and of all the food we eat MEAT is No. 1 in the daily diet.

We all know that our Armed Forces at home and overseas require "fighting food," and meat is surely the Number 1 of their ration. Since meat is such a vital food, it is the concern and duty of every housewife to conserve it as much as possible and prepare it so as to get all the nutritional elements which meat supplies.

Meat dealers throughout the country are anxious to cooperate with every American housewife. They will help plan wholesome, tasty meat dishes from the numerous cuts and varieties which are available and can be supplied. Many of these cuts may be new to American tables, but they all have high nutritional value.

Soldier's Query Starts New Class In Mathematics

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — (INS) — "Excuse me, m'am, but can you do 'square root'?" queried a soldier of the library hostess at the Miami Beach Servicemen's pier.

When she suggested both trying to work the problem together, he agreed - and then the crowd started gathering too As a result, classes in math were started for the soldiers with Beach high school teachers serving as instructors.

The popularity of those classes which supplement army training led to the beginning of Spanish classes, which, incidentally works in reverse also. Several soldiers raised on the Mexican border who learned only a few phrases of English find the classes of especial benefit.

The classes kept growing with dancing, art, and English among other things being taught, even gin rummy.

Roving Reporter

NOW ON THE TUNISIAN FRONT

He goes where you'd like to, sees what you'd want to, tells about it, so that you'll say to yourself, "I've been there."

HERE'S A SAMPLE OF HIS COLUMN:

"They had enough thriller-diller experiences to fill a book. Lieut. Ed Boughton of New York had a typical one. His plane was shot all to pieces, and the glass canopy that shuts him into the seat was damaged so he couldn't get it open. Consequently he couldn't jump, and simply had to land the plane or die.

"Miraculously, he got it back to the field and crash-landed it. The plane was nothing but junk—Lieut. Boughton wasn't hurt. When they finally got him out, they discovered that the jammed canopy had probably saved his life. For his parachute was shot half away, and if he'd jumped he would have fallen like a plummet."

BANISHMENT OF ACADIANS BASIS FOR NEW BOOK

'Sea Is So Wide' Tells of Period When England Was at War With France.

Among the new books which will appear on the shelves at the Mansfield Public Library Saturday is "THE SEA IS SO WIDE" by Evelyn Eaton.

This is the story of the French Acadians' banishment from their hard-won warmlands in Nova Scotia, when England was at war with France, and of their settling in the colonies of the south. Their story, told with sympathy and dramatic force is personified through the members of the Comeau family and in particular by Barbe Comeau.

BENEATH ANOTHER SUN by Ernst Lothar, is a moving story of the transplanting of the entire population of an Austrian province to a Czech munition center where it is forced to manufacture weapons against the free people of the world. The latter half of the novel deals with the heroic efforts of these Tyrolean peasants to undermine the evil forces which have enslaved them. How they resist the Nazi tyranny and how the hero, Andreas, becomes a member of the Underground, makes a sincere and convincing novel. Translated by Barrows Mussey.

MARIA by Michael De Capite, is the simply told and very moving story of a simple and lovely American-born daughter of Italian immigrants, of her arranged and unhappy marriage, and of her children.

Other fiction includes, WASHINGTON, U. S. A. Cuthrell; DON'T CATCH ME, Powell; SHE DIED A LADY, Carr.

TOKYO RECORD by Otto D. Tolischus, the former Tokyo correspondent of the New York Times and winner of the 1940 Pulitzer Prize for distinguished correspondence, tells the full tale of how and why Japan plunged into war. The book is not only a story of the author's personal experiences, but a fundamental book on Japan from which the reader will get a thorough analysis of the underlying ideas which dominate the Japanese military rulers and which are rapidly spreading through all classes of Japanese society.

THE MERMAID AND THE MESSERSCHMITT by Mrs. Rulka Langer is the gripping story of the experiences of one family and their friends in Warsaw during the blitzkreig of September, 1939. The terror, horror, and destruction are depicted vividly and realistically. The author is a young Polish woman who spent two years on a scholarship at Vassar, and while the wife of the consul in Washington.

DICTATORS OF THE BATON by David Ewen, covers the musical front from New York to California, graphically describing how about 20 of our greatest orchestras came into being. The author also presents, with many anecdotes and entertaining candor, about 30 of our famous conductors. The art of conducting is also explained in an introductory essay.

THE SKIN OF OUR TEETH by Thornton Wilder is an allegorical play of man through the ages, told as the adventures of the Antrobus family from the time the great wall of ice creeps over the world to the end of the war any war. Tallulah Bankhead, Frederic March and Florence Eldridge head the cast of the Broadway production.

Other non-fiction includes, THE LATIN - AMERICAN SONG BOOK, RAILROADS AND RIVERS, Clark; RURAL AMERICA TODAY, Works and Lesser, JEWISH PIONEERS AND PATRIOTS, Friedman; OXY-ACETYLENE WELDING AND CUTTING, Giachino; BASIC BENCH-METAL PRACTICE AND PRECISION MEASURING, Giachino; SOCIAL INSURANCE AND ALLIED SERVICES, Beveridge; BLACK WORKERS AND THE NEW UNIONS, Cayton and Mitchell; THE PROGRESS OF SCIENCE, 1942, Groller Society; ELEMENTARY METALLURGY, Frier.

Steady Stream of Supply Trucks Ply Alcan Road

WINNIPEG, Can.—(INS)—Quantities of supplies from the United States to Dawson Creek, southern terminus of the Alcan highway, are increasing steadily.

Several thousand trucks operate over the 1600 miles into Skagway where cargoes are transferred to the White Horse and Yukon railway.

These super-freight vehicles are equipped with one-way radios and keep in touch with roadway stations. Movements of the trucks are closely followed by dispatchers at either ends of the line. Two-man crews are relieved every eight hours.

On their northbound trips the trucks carry supplies for remote Alaskan posts; on their return they haul capacity loads of raw material from the northland.

Pre-fabricated houses and community buildings are under construction at stations all along the highway as a result of truck deliveries from U. S. manufacturers. The pre-fabricated plan makes it possible for a dough-boy, with the aid of a blueprint and assistant, to erect one of the three-room houses in eight hours. The dwellings are complete with fire brick stoves and fireplaces.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

N THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

ASHINGTON—You can find an excellent formula for your own thinking in Prime Minis- Churchill's latest speech. He gives needed asis to the point that we must not allow talk t peace aims to mislead us into thinking that war is about over. Yet he makes a place for sary planning about the future.

otalitarian people can run on a one-track mind because they are not supposed to do any thinking for themselves. Democratic people, however, must work now on a double-track system. Democratic people must be fighting the war, while at the same time planning the moves that will come after. That is not an easy thing to do. But democracy is the most difficult form of government and is tolerated not because it is the easy method but because under it human being can stay free.

Clapper

verything that Churchill says about the fighting ahead is underscored by the news of furGerman advances in Russia. It is underd by the delay in knocking the Axis out of sia, by the heavy sinkings in the Atlantic, and e fact that we have vast quantities of tanks other equipment piled up here far in excess ir ability to ship it across.

evertheless Mr. Churchill, while recognizing Hitler is far from beaten, talks about war and peace aims. In fact, he made the longest h of his career as prime minister about them. Churchill discusses his hopes for regional coun- of the nations, for a four-year internal tran- plan for England and for yet another plan that.

ne prime minister talks about the necessity improving the health and vigor of the people ritain, or providing milk for babies, of increase the birth rate.

obbery must disappear and the advantages ucation must be opened to everyone. Opportes in public service must be available to everyone, regardless of what school tie he wears. England, says Mr. Churchill, must take advantage of talent and ability wherever it may be found.

We can well believe that the reason Mr. Churchill is making that kind of an internal political speech, is that his people demand some assurance that a better England will rise out of the death and destruction of this war. He recognizes the public longings which have given such popularity to the Beveridge plan.

In the United States I think we all feel that, given a peaceful world and reasonably intelligent government at Washington, the American people have the resources and the industrial ability to produce reasonably prosperous times.

In America our real anxiety is whether there will be peace so that we can go ahead with our own lives. Throughout this century our internal life has been violently affected by foreign wars. All wars abroad hit us. The big ones eventually involve us. Any major war is a threat to our security.

So that is our first program, and the one that must be solved before we can hope to have stable conditions inside the country for any length of time.

That is why the resolution of the four senators, for instance, which Secretary Cordell Hull has endorsed, becomes such an important event in our affairs. It is a specific attempt to get something started.

Some people say that debate on this question in congress would distract from national unity and from the prosecution of the war. Would it do so any more than to debate other questions, such as whether congress should take control of war production from the military, or cut down the size of the army, or give draft deferment to a whole class of people such as farmers?

Discussion of such questions does not seem to interfere with the war, or with morale or national unity. At least such discussion goes on without any very serious questions being raised as to its propriety. So how can it be considered harmful to discuss, as Mr. Churchill does on England, what we are going to do with the victory?

FUND TO HELP OHIO SCHOOLS URGED IN BILL

Measure Aimed at Improved Management, Increased State Control.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Establishment of a state fund of approximately $1,000,000 to help school districts in financial difficulties is proposed in a bill before the senate for a vote today.

It would be designated as the state public school rehabilitation and equalization fund, and from it schools could obtain money to pay delinquent salaries to teachers and other debts and to improve buildings and buy equipment.

The proposed legislation, on the other hand, would give the state department of education greater control over local school administration.

"This bill," said the author, Sen. Albert L. Daniels (R.-Highland), "makes it possible to help struggling districts out of their financial dilemmas by granting the director of education power to require changes to be made in the management of the schools before help could be received.

"Much of the existing difficulties originated in poor management. This can now be remedied and kept that way through supervision. Some districts now find themselves in trouble because their board of education could not manage their affairs and would not be advised by capable school executives and county boards of education. The bill provides a way out in these extreme cases."

The senate gave second reading to a bill by Sen. Fred R. Seibert (R.-Auglaize) which virtually would abolish a bureau of the Democratic state auditor, Joseph T. Ferguson.

Seibert proposed elimination of the relief pre-audits, which are conducted by a staff of 20 examiners under Ferguson. The pre-audits cost $35,820 last year, but the budget director recommended an appropriation of only $10,000 for this year.

Seibert said the audits had been made unnecessary by the sharp reduction in poor relief activities.

The senate yesterday passed bills making it unlawful to turn in a false fire alarm and increasing from one-half to one per cent the commission which the state pays county treasurers for selling prepaid sales tax receipts.

VETO LOOMING IN BATTLE ON FDR POLICIES

President Expected To Appeal To Public as Congress Leans To Tax Forgiveness.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Although President Roosevelt has adopted the strategy of silence in meeting congressional rebellion against New Deal domestic policies he evidently is planning a veto counterattack buttressed with appeals to public opinion.

The uprising against the administration is gaining heat and momentum although the 78th congress elected last November is demonstrating its determination to fight the war to a victorious end.

Hottest controversy centers on tax proposals at which the administration balks on grounds that it would forgive large sums to the wealthy. Mr. Roosevelt contends that the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan immediately would cost the treasury large sums but treasury experts do not appear to support that contention.

There is no modern precedent for congress' angry drive to abrogate Mr. Roosevelt's limit of $25,000, less taxess, on salaries. The house approved and sent to the senate late yesterday a conference report on the bill to repeal the president's order and forbidding him to reduce wages or salaries below the highest levels reached between Jan. 1, and Sept. 15, 1942. The formality of senate approval of the conference report is necessary before it can go to the White House.

President Roosevelt scarcely can defend his position with a veto.

The nullification of the salary limit executive order is attached as a rider to the administration's bill to increase the national debt limit from $125,000,000,000 to $210,000,000,000. The debt now is $119,640,000,000 and there would not be time to reintroduce the debt bill and get it through congress before the existing limit is reached.

Another bright spot for the administration is in the War Labor Board where Congress of Industrial Organizations and American Federation of Labor representatives evidently are willing to go along with existing wage ceilings until John L. Lewis' $2-a-day raise demand for the United Mine Workers can be rejected.

But congress is swinging for the presidential chin on domestic issues and White House appointments.

HOMES RUINED BY BIG CAVE-IN

Wide Residential Area In Coal Mining Town Sinks; High School Damaged.

(By International News Service)

PITTSTON, Pa.—Residents of this city today were surveying damage done by a cave-in which made almost 50 families homeless and almost trapped 28 miners hundreds of feet beneath the surface.

The "settling," one of a series of experienced in this area, is the result of extensive coal mining operations over the years. Approximately twenty acres of the city's residential section was affected, sinking from a few inches to many feet.

Most seriously damaged was the Pittsburgh high school, a two-story brick building, the walls of which were pulled from the main structure. It was ruled unsafe until repairs could be made.

Huge "pot holes" appeared in some places, a few as large as 35 feet in diameter and almost as deep. A tree in front of one residence settled until its top branches were even with the surface of the ground.

Twenty-eight miners, at work in the No. 9 colliery of the Pagnotti operations, narrowly escaped being entrapped when a section of the level on which they were working collapsed.

Utilities were seriously affected throughout the city as gas and water mains burst and telephone and power lines snapped.

Despite the wide-spread damage, however, no one was injured. Those made homeless were cared for by civilian defense workers, police and fire department crews.

Sgt. Lincoln Troupe, stationed in a Texas army camp, bought a round trip ticket from his station to Mansfield but never got to use the return half of it. After visiting in the F. H. Harmon home at 235 Sturges avenue, Troupe arrived at the train to find his ticket missing. Obliging friends loaned him the price of the return fare, almost $40, and are attempting to locate for him the lost ticket, which bears his name. If found, it may be returned to USO headquarters.

10 DEAD, 2 HURT IN ARMS BLAST

Work Continues at Ravenna Arsenal as Army Starts Explosion Probe.

(By United Press)

RAVENNA — United States army inspectors today began an investigation of the cause of an explosion which killed 10 workers and injured two others at the Portage Ordnance depot, storage area of the sprawling Ravenna Ammunition works.

Col. Raymond A. Brown, commanding officer, said that "no information concerning the cause of the explosion will be made public until the investigations have been completed."

It was announced, however, that operations at the depot would continue without interruption, indicating that the damage to the storage area was not extensive.

The following were announced dead:

Rufus Bankston, 26, Akron; Ona Sayre, 42, Akron; Robert Scott, 49, Warren; Don Wirth, 38, Ravenna; Alex Woodman, 61, Newton Falls; David Anderson, 45, Akron; Harry C. Kyer, 28, Akron; Samuel R. Wagoner, 60, Ravenna; George W. Hawkins, 33, Brady Lake; William F. Allen, 27, Newton Falls.

Injured were: Mrs. Emma Thompson, Ravenna; and Robert Hillier, West Farmington, critically.

The explosion occurred at 11:15 a. m. EWT yesterday. Houses were shaken 30 miles away at Youngstown, O., but, oddly, nearby farmers did not feel the blast.

Col. Brown said the damage to the depot was estimated at $15,000.

ON HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

LLYWOOD—If the government ever wants to make things really tough for Hollywood, all to do is ration worry.

orry is Hollywood's most prevalent indoor and or sport, probably because it doesn't require rt, a deck of cards, or even a partner. The worrying in town is done alone.

cille Ball was talking about it the other day, with special reference to Desi Arnaz, her husband. Desi was worried by, among other things, his army status. He has a commission in his native Cuba's army, but he also is subject to draft here. He was torn between the two, though his final citizenship papers hadn't come through. Between times, he was worried over his career.

Coons

"He thinks he'll never get another picture to do," chuckled Lucille sympathetically. "He's after each one, that it will be his last. Then 's a part, and he worries about whether he'll get any rest. He can't stand not working, hen he is, he thinks it would be grand to up on his sleep.

tors aren't happy unless they're working," e continued. "Richard Carlson told me, when ned a long-term contract, that his worries over. He wouldn't be bothered if he didn't bs, as long as he knew his check was waiting week. But then he begins wondering: why they cast him? Maybe he isn't any good. Maybe nobody likes him. Maybe he's terrible. So he gets a part—and he's always good—but then he worries about the preview. The whole cycle starts again.

"Me? Well, I've worked so steadily that I haven't had time for much worry," says Lucille. "Oh—yes, I have. After 'DuBarry Was a Lady' was finished I began wondering. There were a few bad weeks when I was sure I was a flop and I'd come around the lot hoping someone would tell me I wasn't. It didn't last long, though. It just seemed long. I finally stopped worrying."

Everybody in pictures worries, from producers to office boys, but actors have more time to give to it. A worried writer can write, a worried director can work on his next story, but an actor between pictures can't act. No matter how busy he is with other things—like golf or war work or his latest romance—he can still find time to worry about his career.

When actors approach the top they're likely to sigh, "Ah, my troubles are over!" That's when their worries really begin. As Bob Hope remarked when he hit the top of the air ratings, there's only one way to travel from a peak. If you travel at all, it's down.

Fred Astaire is a champion worrier—about stories, and still pictures, and dance routines, and music, and practically everything connected with his movies. Claudette Colbert worries about her health (she's practically a hypochondriac) and how she'll photograph. Veronica Lake worries about keeping her weight up and Patricia Morison worries about keeping hers down.
